Results Framework

Since 1960, the World Bank’s International Development Association (IDA) has been building the foundations for long-term development in the world’s poorest countries. IDA works together with client countries to tackle development challenges through a country-driven model that emphasizes ownership, alignment with national priorities, and improving the lives of the people most in need. IDA20 has adapted to a changing global context to strategically address critical issues, reflected in the five special themes climate change, fragility, conflict and violence, gender and development, human capital, and jobs and economic transformation, as well as the four crosscutting issues of debt, governance and institutions, technology and crisis preparedness.

In line with the World Bank’s evolution towards outcome orientation, IDA continuously monitors the results of the interventions it supports to understand the impact it is having in client countries and inform adaptive management. Through the IDA Results Measurement System (RMS) the World Bank Group tracks and measures how IDA inputs and activities help countries deliver tangible results that contribute to high-level development outcomes. The IDA20 RMS uses a three-tiered development results framework with 95 indicators to track results of IDA countries at an aggregate level. It represents the most ambitious results architecture in IDA’s history.

TIER 1

IDA Countries Progress

Reports long-term development outcomes and the broader context of countries in which IDA operates.

TIER 2

IDA-Supported Development Results

Tracks development results in countries supported by IDA operations.

TIER 3

IDA Organizational & Operational Effectiveness

Includes measures of both the operational and organizational effectiveness of IDA.

<sup>2</sup> To ensure reliable poverty estimates, countries are required to have survey-based poverty data conducted within three years of the reference year, and IDA estimates are only provided if they cover at least 50 percent of the population in IDA countries. In addition, for 2020, 2021, and 2022, surveys before 2020 are not counted, such that post-2019 only years with sufficient data during or post-COVID have aggregates reported. The reason is that during the COVID-19 pandemic, countries experienced economic shocks and volatility at an unprecedented scale, which means that extrapolations from pre-COVID surveys may be less reliable.

<sup>3</sup> Data coverage may fall below the typical threshold of 66% aggregate reporting. Note that the indicator has changed for this cycle; the IDA19 indicator included only married women ages 15-49.

<sup>4</sup> As the data gaps in this indicator are not random and are likely influenced by cultural sensitivity surrounding the questioning of non-married women on this topic, an estimated IDA aggregate would not accurately represent the IDA cohort.

<sup>5</sup> Purchasing power parity (PPP) GDP is the GDP converted to 2021 constant international dollars using PPP rates, not 2017, for this year's reported data.
