THIS PAPER

- ▶ Newly collected archival data
  - ▶ Personal interactions between U.S. Presidents and Fed Officials 1933–2016
  - ▶ Amount, length, type of interactions → construct long time series
- ▶ Narrative identification
  - ▶ SVAR with narrative sign restrictions → “political pressure shock”
  - ▶ Exploit variation from Nixon and Johnson administrations

PREVIEW OF FINDINGS

Political pressure shocks . . .

1. Strongly and persistently raise inflation
2. Have little to no effect on other macro variables
3. Differ from expansionary monetary policy shocks
4. Materialize throughout 1933-2016 sample, though mostly in 1970's

PRESIDENT-FED INTERACTION COUNT THROUGH TIME

- ▶ Clinton: 6 interactions in 8 years; Nixon: 160 interactions in 5.5 years
- ▶ Second half of 1971: Nixon speaks with Burns on average every 5 days

IDENTIFICATION STRATEGY

NARRATIVE IDENTIFICATION

- ▶ Challenge: personal interactions do not necessarily capture political pressure
- ▶ Solution: find increases in President-Fed interactions that ...
  - ▶ ... took place for political reasons only, i.e. is plausibly exogenous
  - ▶ ... arguably impacted monetary policy
- ▶ Exploit two historical episodes in SVAR
  - ▶ Main specification: Nixon's pressure on Burns in 1971
  - ▶ Additional variation: LBJ's pressure on Martin in 1967

NARRATIVE IDENTIFICATION: NIXON

- ▶ Before his re-election, Richard Nixon pressured Arthur Burns to ease policy
  - ▶ Evidence from “Nixon Tapes” (Abrams, 2006)
  - ▶ Evidence from Arthur Burns’ “secret diary” (Ferrell, 2010)
- ▶ Burns, a Republican and friend to Nixon, arguably gave in to Nixon’s pressure
  - ▶ Corroborated by unsystematic monetary easing in 1971 (Romer and Romer, 2004b)
  - ▶ Corroborated by voting patterns in the FOMC (Thornton and Wheelock, 2014)

SOME QUOTES FROM ARTHUR BURNS' DIARY MORE

- ▶ “I am convinced the President will do anything to be reelected.” (March 1971)
- ▶ “I watched his face, as he spoke, with a feeling of dismay; for his features became twisted and what I saw was uncontrolled cruelty.” (July 1971)
- ▶ “I got a stern letter from the President urging me start expanding the money supply and predicting disaster if this didn't happen.” (Oct 1971)
- ▶ “President at this meeting again expressed his concern about the money supply. I reminded him that I was looking after that properly.” (Nov 1971)

DEFINITION OF POLITICAL PRESSURE SHOCK

- ▶ Long quarterly data (Ramey and Zubairy, 2018) + President-Fed interactions
- ▶ Use narrative sign restriction method (Antolin-Diaz and Rubio-Ramirez, 2018)

Variable	Traditional sign restrictions	Narrative restrictions
President-Fed interaction count	+	1971:Q3, 1971:Q4
Log GDP deflator	+
3-month T-bill rate	(-)
Log real GDP
Log government expenditures
Nom. Deficit / Nom. GDP

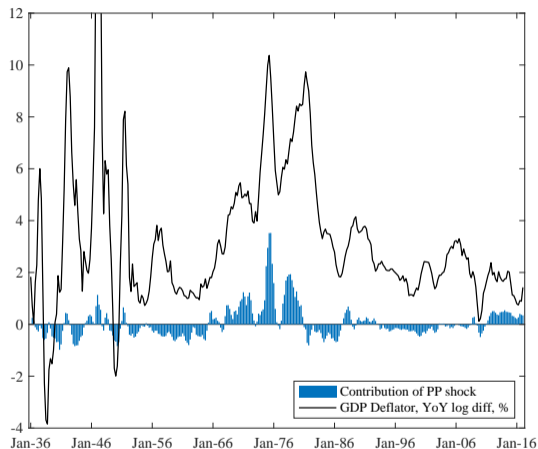

- ▶ SVAR different from event study: can 'detect' shock anywhere in sample

RESULTS

IRFS OVER 1933-2016 SAMPLE, BASELINE VERSION LIGHT

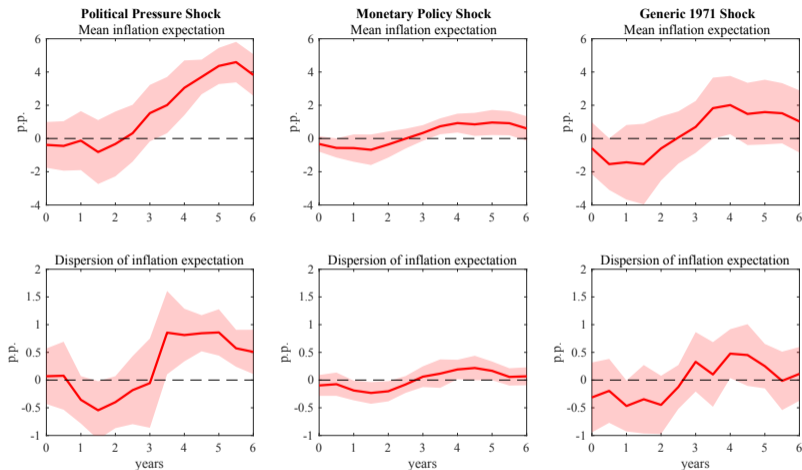

- ▶ 10 more personal interactions per quarter  $\Rightarrow$  price level 5% higher after 10 years
- ▶ Effect on other variables not distinguishable from zero
- ▶ Narrative restriction sharpens identification (red vs. gray bands)

- ▶ Evidence of political pressure shock affecting 1970s inflation, less elsewhere

EFFECTS ON INFLATION EXPECTATIONS

- ▶ Political pressure shock raises inflation expectations and disagreement

INSIDE THE MARKET: Wall Street Fears Whiplash From Nixon-Burns Collision

INSIDE THE MARKET

Wall Street Fears Whiplash From Nixon-Burns Collision

BY ERNEST A. SCHONBERGER, Times Staff Writer

INVESTORS are suddenly casting a watchful eye for signs of just how serious a confrontation might be brewing between the Federal Reserve Board and economic officials within the Nixon Administration.

The issue: Just how rapidly should the economy be headed up?

Some expect a head-to-head fight. Others shrug it off.

Most agree there's little likelihood of an immediate blow to the stock market.

Fed Chairman Arthur F. Burns brought it into the open last week by refusing to pledge further expansion of the money supply in support of President Nixon's goal of rapid economic growth for 1971. The Fed, although it sometimes acts hand-in-glove with a presidential administration, is a completely independent, semigovernmental agency. Its policies determine the supply of money and credit.

Administration officials have been claiming the money supply would have to grow 6 to 8% this year to meet their economic target.

In testimony before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress Burns said rates above 5 or 6% have historically "intensified inflationary pressures" if continued "for a long period of time." He labeled the Administration's goal of a $1.065 trillion Gross National Product for 1971 "optimistic."

"You would have to term it (Burns' testimony) something of a confrontation," says Richard B. Bailey, a trustee for the $2 billion Massachusetts Investors Trust mutual fund.

That would seem to be the case. Both John B. Connally, secretary of the Treasury, and Herbert Stein, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, have already reacted to Burns' testimony contentiously. They insist that the money supply should be expanded more rapidly.

WALL STREETERS have been saying for a year that the Nixon Administration would pull all economic stops early enough to do some good for the 1972 elections. And the same observers have been saying that this is not in step with the generally conservative Fed whose members enjoy long term appointments and don't have to seek election.

Claude Rosenberg, president of Rosenberg Capital Management Co. of San Francisco and author of the book, "Stock Market Primer," says future developments between Burns and the Administration will be "very much a key to the stock market."

He thinks a confrontation, although not a monumental one, is brewing. Underlying this will probably be the Administration's fear that unemployment won't come down, says the money manager.

Rosenberg notes that "business can improve on the order of 5 or 10%—without very much increase in employment." And the corollary to that would be little help for the unemployed.

For now, Rosenberg isn't letting the hassle alter his positive attitude toward the stock market and the $60 million he manages in it.

BUT IT'S HIS feeling that if and when the Administration succeeds in getting business rolling—"let's say in the fall"—the Fed will counteract by hitting the brakes on the money supply.

At that juncture, investors may have to be quick on the trigger and into cash, he feels.

William G. Wagner of Janus Management Co. of Los Angeles is less concerned about the ramifications of Burns' statements.

"I don't think there's any significant conflict," he says. "It's not important if they're going to push up the money supply greatly (5 or 6%) or very greatly (more than 6%). Who cares—so long as it's going up a large amount."

At any rate, that influences his stock market thinking for much of 1971 and into 1972. He recognizes that any money management errors are apt to be on the side of overexpansion. However, "after the election, we've got to watch out," he says.

Joseph F. Dorsey, president of Argus Research Co. in New York, thinks there's "no big dispute." As he sees it, the Fed has been working on conservative projections—"don't forget that the money supply grew very slowly in January." Therefore, the Fed has leeway to move more in the direction of the Administration's goals and still stay within the annual rate of 5 or 6%, he says.

CONCLUSION

CONCLUSION

- ▶ Novel data and narrative identification → political pressure shocks
- ▶ Quantitative results
  - ▶ President acts 50% as bad as Nixon for 6 months ⇒ price level rises by 8%
- ▶ Benefits of central bank independence often highlighted using cross-country data; I provide supporting evidence for the US through time
- ▶ I make the new time series available on my website

APPENDIX SLIDES

SUMMARY STATS: 1ON1 VS OTHER

back

WEEKEND INTERACTIONS: COUNT AND LENGTH (IN H)

SOCIAL INTERACTIONS: COUNT AND LENGTH (IN H)

back

COMPARISON WITH MARTIN (2015 EER) BACK

- ▶ Cover longer time period and calendars that are only physically available (Bush)
- ▶ Include wider set of Fed Officials
- ▶ Collect interaction characteristics: length, social nature, weekday, etc.
- ▶ Going to higher than annual frequency
- ▶ Most importantly, use formally for identification

MORE INFORMATION ABOUT BURNS' DIARY BACK

- ▶ The diary only became public in 2008
- ▶ Entries cover meaningful interactions and/or when Burns was worried or angry
- ▶ For example, large gap in entries before November 1970; it is a good guess that pressures start around there
- ▶ Burns himself writes in 1973 that “August 15, 1971 was a definite and decisive turning point in the President’s state of mind.”
- ▶ Also, there is a big break between February and September 1972
- ▶ Burns stopped writing the diary altogether after Nixon resigned

MORE QUOTES FROM BURNS' DIARY BACK

- ▶ “He was still the emperor, and I should therefore toe the mark.” (July 1971)
- ▶ “There was little room for any doubt (...) that he was governed mainly, if not entirely, by a political motive; (...) that the kind of changes we were discussing (...) were essential for the campaign of 1972” (Aug 1971)
- ▶ “President called and asked me to come over within an hour. Hastily rearranged my schedule and spent an hour and quarter with him.” (Sep 1971)
- ▶ “What a dangerous game RN is playing” (Nov 1971)
- ▶ “Clearly he wants power (...) but I don't think he has any positive idea at all as to what to do with this power.” (Sep 1972)

BURNS AND NIXON ACTIVELY DISCUSSED FED PERSONNEL

- ▶ “Some talk followed about the inadequacies of Hayes and Brimmer. And the President indicated he would do what he could to rid me of Brimmer.” (Jan 1972)
  - ▶ Alfred Hayes: NY Fed President. Andrew Brimmer: Member of Federal Reserve Board.
- ▶ “We talked about personnel problem at Fed. President knew that Rogers would not have Brimmer for U.N. We talked about an ambassadorship; President thought that Sweden – preferably Austria – would be possibilities. I expressed strong doubt about Brimmer accepting an African post.” (Feb 1972)

DIFFERENT VIEWS ON WHETHER BURNS GAVE IN TO PRESSURE

- ▶ Accounts that agree with the view I portray here:
  - ▶ Abrams (2006), Meltzer (2009)
- ▶ Different, at at least more nuanced, views:
  - ▶ DeLong (1997), Hetzel (1998), Romer and Romer (2004a)
  - ▶ Main argument is that Burns had a “nonmonetary view of inflation”
  - ▶ These accounts were provided before Burns’ diary was made public in 2008
- ▶ One has to acknowledge: 1970’s stagflation was a pretty new challenge

DIFFERENT VIEWS ON WHETHER BURNS GAVE IN TO PRESSURE

- ▶ FOMC voting behavior at least hard to reconcile with the “nonmonetary” view being the standard view of the time
- ▶ Romer-Romer easing shock: policy easing was nonsystematic!
- ▶ Burns’ diary makes clear there was a multidimensional discussion between Burns and Nixon, touching on fiscal policy, restructuring the intl. monetary system, etc.
  - ▶ Burns cared deeply about some of those issues
  - ▶ Conceivable that increase in monetary supply was part of a “give and take”
- ▶ Even if Burns did not cave, expectations of economic agents could have been changed by Nixon’s behavior to the degree that it was publicly observable
  - ▶ Burns’ diary makes clear that Press was well aware of the pressures (see next slide)
  - ▶ See also Bianchi, Gomez-Cram, Kind, and Kung \(2023\)

PUBLIC KNOWLEDGE OF NIXON'S PRESSURE

- ▶ Some quotes from Burns' diary about the public's perception
  - ▶ "The confrontation reported or predicted by the Press did not come off."
  - ▶ "(...) the White House children ought to stop the dangerous game of feeding gossip and fabrication to the Press."
  - ▶ "Recently, a journalist came to see me and told me that some White House operatives (specifically, Haldeman and Shultz) had their bayonets out for me."

IRFS OVER 1933-2008 SAMPLE BACK

► Stopping before 2008 gives similar to stopping in 2016
