President, and preparing correspondence for the President's signature or on his behalf.

6. During the past year, the Assistants led the preparations for several major meetings, including the Annual Meetings, Development Committee meetings, and meetings with the UN, MDB and Foundation heads, Japan, and Transparency International; handled 1,600 pieces of internal correspondence from MDs, VPs, etc.; coordinated the preparation of about 100 briefing materials per month; and coordinated the execution of 14 trips/missions for the President. The Assistants also accompanied the President on four missions.

ii. Speechwriting

7. The President's Speechwriter is primarily responsible for preparing speeches, talking points and background material, as needed, for both internal and external audiences. He also prepares background and source materials in preparation for major events (e.g. Development Committee meetings, G7 summit, etc.). He is responsible for developing, in collaboration with EXTVP, the Chief of Staff and other senior managers, the main themes and messages for the President's public addresses, ensuring their consistency with the President's strategic priorities. He works closely with the relevant experts within the Bank Group to ensure the accuracy and appropriateness of material presented. The Speechwriter reviews incoming speech requests and, in consultation with relevant senior managers, makes recommendations and performs the necessary follow-up actions. He also prepares other written materials such as book introductions. Since March 1, the Speechwriter has prepared 30 speeches, from which 70 presentations were made by the President during trips abroad.

iii. Scheduling

8. All requests for appointments with the President, including speaking and personal/social engagements, are directed to the Scheduler, who maintains the President's calendar. After checking the President's availability, Bank-related requests are referred by the Scheduler to the appropriate Assistant to the President, while those for personal/social engagements are passed on to the President's personal Executive Assistant who forwards them to the President for his decision.

9. The Assistants review all requests and consult with appropriate parties (i.e. the relevant MD, VP, and, if the Assistants deem it necessary, the President or the Chief of Staff) regarding the urgency, desirability and modalities of the requested meetings. After such consultations, the Assistants determine the action (schedule or regret) to be taken on the requests, and advise the Scheduler on the decision, including attendance, length of appointment, need for briefing and unit/person responsible for preparation, etc. The Scheduler then either sets up the appointment or sends regrets, and
