

Internship # 11- Social Protection and Jobs Support in Brazil

Location: Brasilia, Brazil

Social Protection and Jobs practice helps individuals and families, especially the poor and vulnerable, cope with crises and shocks, find jobs, improve productivity, invest in the health and education of their children, and protect the aging population. Social protection programs are at the heart of boosting human capital for the world's most vulnerable. They empower people to be healthy, pursue their education, and seek opportunity to lift themselves and their families out of poverty.

Duties and accountabilities:

The Social Protection and Jobs Global Practice is seeking to recruit a young and talented professional to support the Unit's agenda on the promoting gender equity among Afro-descendants and other minorities.

The intern will specifically support the unit with its ongoing analytic and community engagement work, participating in quantitative and qualitative research activities, supporting in the production of technical analytic pieces and policy notes, and liaising with organizations from within Brazil and across the region, as needed. The intern will also support specific tasks part of the activities of the on-going project in Women's Economic Inclusion through Labor and Social Assistance Services (ELA).

Qualifications

- The successful candidate should have preferably a Master's degree in any of the social sciences, development economics, public policy, law or other relevant discipline.
- Candidates with experience working with human development policies and programs, including on how to promote economic inclusion for women and/or barriers for integration of migrants, refugees and forced displacement population are specially encouraged to apply.
- Fluency in Portuguese is required, working knowledge of English and Spanish will be an advantage.
- The post will be based in Brasilia, Brazil, and there is flexibility depending on their current location and business needs.
- Duration 6 months.