World Bank President's Tour

There can certainly have been no dearth of topics for discussion at yesterday's meeting between the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mr. Eugene R. Black, the president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The general problems of the bank and the scope of its activities in the Commonwealth provide an inexhaustible subject-matter at any time. On this occasion the special topic was presumably the financing of the Near East and Middle East. Mr. Black's visit to the Near East begins to-day—he was due to leave for Egypt, with accompanying officials, early this morning. This tour is one of the regular series of annual visits which he makes to one or other of the main regions of the world.

At the time of the bank's most recent report, covering a year ended June 30, 1952, the only loan actually made as a result of its transactions with Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, and Syria, was that for $12,800,000 made to Iraq in June, 1950, for a flood control project on the River Tigris. Israel has not yet become a member of the bank and the work of the various bank missions which had visited Egypt, Lebanon, and Syria had not up to the middle of last year led to any actual loans for specific development projects. The bank's discussions in Iran (the only member country in the region which Mr. Black is not planning to visit on this occasion) were concerned with possible means of settling the oil dispute. The bank's work in the Near East is not made any easier by the abrupt political changes which have occurred from time to time throughout the region.

The general nature of Mr. Black's discussions during his short visit to London was also indicated by his meeting with representatives of the Association of Consulting Engineers, in which he may have been concerned with ways of utilizing British engineering experience in development projects of interest to the bank. The bank has been in close touch with the Colonial Office "regarding assistance for colonial development in Africa" for some time past, and it was doubtless in continuation of this policy and to discuss further the implications of the Government's decision to make £60m. available to the bank in sterling that Mr. Black met representatives of the Colonial Office. This decision has raised the amount of the United Kingdom's subscription to the bank now released to over three-quarters of the total which is payable in sterling under the bank's rules. These provide that 18 per cent. (or £80m. in the case of the United Kingdom) of a member's subscription is payable in the member's own currency; hitherto British Governments had not felt able to release more than £1,500,000 of this amount.

Le président de la Banque Internationale de Reconstruction au Liban

BEYROUTH. — M. Eugen Black, président de la Banque internationale pour la reconstruction et le développement, est arrivé à Beyrouth au début de la semaine venant du Caire. Il a été reçu en audience ce soir par M. Camille Chatoun, président de la République. Au cours de son séjour au Liban qui durera jusqu'à dimanche, M. Black aura des entretiens avec les membres du gouvernement, notamment, avec M. Georges Hakim, ministre des Finances et de l'Economie.

Les entretiens porteront sur la situation économique et financière générale du pays, mais on pense que parmi les questions évoquées figurera notamment celle d'un emprunt de 15 millions de dollars que le gouvernement libanais envisage de demander à la B.I.R.D. en vue de la réalisation de grands projets d'irrigation et d'électrification.

Au terme de son séjour au Liban, M. Black poursuivra sa tournée dans le Proche-Orient en visitant la Syrie, l'Irak et la Turquie.

EGYPT HAS NOT YET ASKED FOR WORLD BANK LOAN

Mr. Black Favorably Impressed by Members of Egyptian Government

A press conference with
Mr. Black

Some people believe that Mr. Black came to Egypt to discuss loan requests submitted to the World Bank. This is incorrect. Mr. Black is on a quick trip for the purpose of contacting some countries which have subscribed to the capital of the World Bank and are represented on its Board of Directors. This is the first time he has visited the Near East. Mr. Black talked with the Government, was received by General Naguib, the Minister of Finance and also by Mr. Hussein Fahmi, President of the Permanent Committee for National Production. All these talks naturally dealt with the great works planned for the development of Egyptian economy. But there were no loan discussions, properly speaking.

The World Bank's operations are based on engineering reports. Such reports do not at present exist and the discussions with Mr. Black were only concerned with specifying the fields which might eventually become the subject of later negotiations. True, the World Bank was officially approached in 1949 regarding an irrigation project in the Kenah region, upper Egypt, involving a series of drillings. Technical studies had been made; however, the Egyptian Government desisted at the time and there is no Egyptian loan request at present.

It is significant that despite his short stay in Egypt, Mr. Black should have visited Assouan where engineers of the Ministry of Public Works showed him the dam, explaining the project now under way in that part of Egypt. It is known how great an interest military and civilian circles take in the project of building a large dam downstream from the one at Assouan. If built, this dam would store the muddy waters which each year are lost to Egypt at flood time. It would protect the country in time of war against the danger resulting from the Assouan Dam's being bombed. It is clear, however, that the dam, costing some 100 million pounds, could not be built by the Egyptian Government without foreign aid.

On the other hand, the building of a power plant fed by the existing Assouan reservoir is linked to the study of a fertilizer plant that would absorb the bulk of the power produced. This subject has obviously been discussed.

Statement by Mr. Black

Asked about the results of his visit to Egypt, Mr. Black said that he was very favorably impressed by the members of the Egyptian Government he had seen. No specific project was discussed. Useful preliminary contacts, however, were established. With regard to the conditions which governed the operations of the Bank, Mr. Black recalled that the projects for which loans are granted must be of a nature to strengthen the economy of the borrowing country and permit easy repayment of the funds lent.

Loan terms vary: for example, if the purchase of agricultural machinery is to be financed, the term may not exceed 7 to 8 years. If the loan is for hydraulic works designed to irrigate a large agricultural zone, repayment may take as long as 25 years. He pointed out that the largest loan granted by the Bank was to France for reconstruction purposes, the amount being 350 million (!) dollars.

In general, however, the size of the loans is much smaller. Twelve million dollars were lent to Iraq for flood control; it should protect Baghdad and the neighboring farm region against periodic floods from the Tigris. Flood waters will be diverted toward the Wadi Tharthar depression which will thus become cultivable.

Fifteen million were lent to Turkey for port improvement, silo construction and a dam with an electric center to supply the ~~Adduano Plan.~~

Adana Plain.

Ethiopia was granted 8 millions for roads and to finance agriculture and industry through the Ethiopian Development Bank.

Mr. Black finally declared that he has not received a request to finance the establishment of an Egyptian metallurgical industry adding that if private enterprises can obtain the loan his Bank can only lend provided the Government guarantees the loan. This shows that Engineer Ahmed Abboud has not requested the Bank as reported by some newspapers.

The plan to create an International Finance Corporation, affiliated with the Bank is still under study. The Corporation would be free to give loans to private enterprises without Government guarantee. It would share in the equity capital of such enterprises together with private investors.

If carried out, this plan would stimulate international investment. But the whole thing is still in its initial stages.

Mr. Black, who is accompanied by four experts, economists and financiers, continues his trip today going next to Beyrouth. The contacts Mr. Black has had with Egyptian authorities will make it possible to specify the fields in which Egypt, which is a Bank member, may profit from Bank lending.

La mise en valeur des ressources du Moyen-Orient

Des discussions viennent de se dérouler entre M. Black et le gouvernement britannique

LONDRES. — La mise en valeur des ressources et de l'équipement industriel du Moyen-Orient a fait l'objet de discussions, à Londres, entre M. Eugène Black, président de la Banque Internationale pour la Reconstruction et le Développement, et M. R. A. Butler, chancelier de l'Echiquier, apprend-on de source autorisée. Il s'agit notamment du financement, par la B.I.R.D., de certains plans d'assistance technique au Moyen-Orient et l'un des buts des conversations de M. Black à Londres est de découvrir la possibilité de trouver, en Grande-Bretagne, le personnel et les biens d'équipement nécessaires à la réalisation de ces plans.

La question de la production pétrolière se trouve, bien entendu, au premier plan des discussions, le Moyen-Orient devenant de plus en plus le principal fournisseur de pétrole du monde. Toutefois, les informations selon lesquelles la B.I.R.D. serait appelée de nouveau à servir d'intermédiaire, dans le conflit anglo-iranien des pétroles, ne sont pas confirmées de sources officielles, quoique cette possibilité ne soit nullement exclue.

La Grande-Bretagne s'efforce, actuellement, d'obtenir auprès de la B.I.R.D. des prêts divers d'un montant total de 100 millions de £ au cours des dix prochaines années en vue du financement de divers projets de développement dans ses colonies. A cet effet, le gouvernement britannique a déjà autorisé la B.I.R.D. à utiliser 60 millions de livres de sa souscription à la Banque.

Rappelons, par ailleurs, qu'à l'issue de la Conférence économique des premiers ministres du Commonwealth, en décembre dernier, à Londres, il fut décidé de créer une société financière du Commonwealth avec participation des grandes banques et des firmes industrielles anglaises qui mobiliseront les ressources en capitaux de la place de Londres dans le même but.

Une coopération importante est ainsi susceptible de se développer entre la B.I.R.D. et la Grande-Bretagne, qui avait toujours insisté sur la nécessité qu'il y avait pour cet établissement international du crédit à jouer un rôle de plus en plus important dans le développement colonial.

Press Conference

MR. BLACK DECLARES THAT HIS DISCUSSIONS IN EGYPT
ONLY DEALT WITH GENERAL PROBLEMS

Last night Mr. Black held a press conference and his answers provided an interesting background of the result of his mission to Cairo which ends today as he is leaving for the other Arab capitals.

Mr. Black said that he was happy to have met Egyptian personalities among them the Prime Minister, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Minister of Finance, the Secretary General of the Arab League and the President of the Permanent Council for National Production. When visiting Assouan he met with the engineers in charge of the Assouan Dam project.

Mr. Black emphasized that his discussions only concerned general problems. In answer to one question, he stated that he makes a rule of visiting Bank members in order to study their needs, examine their projects and decide how productive they are.

As regards Egypt, the financial experts who accompany Mr. Black will examine, if need be, the State Budget, the balance of payments and will investigate the country's financial position so as to have a clear notion of its possibilities. Should Egypt submit a loan application to the World Bank for the purpose of realizing one or more constructive projects, the information gathered on the spot would be the basis on which to appraise the application.

In general, the Bank's objective is to assist its members in increasing their economic productivity in all fields, in the agricultural as well as in those of large projects. One newspaper man asked Mr. Black what has happened to the old projects submitted by former governments, in particular the project of artesian wells. Mr. Black replied that these projects had been either insufficiently examined or abandoned by the successive governments.

World Bank loans may be of considerable size. Thus France obtained a 250 million dollar loan for reconstruction. Other European countries were granted more or less large loans, among them Belgium, Denmark, etc. Today underdeveloped countries have submitted many projects to the Bank which has financed some in Turkey, Iran, Ethiopia, etc. Loans are generally long-term and may be for 25 years.

Answering Mr. Vaucher's question as to the present state of the private credit organization, Mr. Black remarked that the U.N. has the question under study and is preparing a report thereon. Cooperation with private capital has not yet assumed a definite form. At any rate the Bank does not grant loans to private companies operating in a country unless it obtains the guarantee of the respective government.

After the press conference we talked to one of the financial experts accompanying Mr. Black who gave us a few details regarding the method used to learn the budgetary situation and the balance of payments.

This gentlemen has reaffirmed that Egypt had not submitted any special project to the Bank and that Mr. Black's mission was simply to visit member states and that in Egypt his mission only held general discussions with the competent authorities.

Press Conference

MR. BLACK DECLARES THAT HIS DISCUSSIONS IN EGYPT
ONLY DEALT WITH GENERAL PROBLEMS

Last night Mr. Black held a press conference and his answers provided an interesting background of the result of his mission to Cairo which ends today as he is leaving for the other Arab capitals.

Mr. Black said that he was happy to have met Egyptian personalities among them the Prime Minister, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Minister of Finance, the Secretary General of the Arab League and the President of the Permanent Council for National Production. When visiting Assouan he met with the engineer in charge of the Assouan Dam project.

Mr. Black emphasized that his discussions only concerned general problems. In answer to one question, he stated that he makes a rule of visiting Bank members in order to study their needs, examine their projects and decide how productive they are.

As regards Egypt, the financial experts who accompany Mr. Black will examine, if need be, the State Budget, the balance of payments and will investigate the country's financial position so as to have a clear notion of its possibilities. Should Egypt submit a loan application to the World Bank for the purpose of realizing one or more constructive projects, the information gathered on the spot would be the basis on which to appraise the application.

In general, the Bank's objective is to assist its members in increasing their economic productivity in all fields, in the agricultural as well as in those of large projects. One newspaper man asked Mr. Black what has happened to the old projects submitted by former governments, in particular the project of artesian wells. Mr. Black replied that these projects had been either insufficiently examined or abandoned by the successive governments.

EGYPT WOULD REQUEST A LOAN FROM THE INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR CONSTRUCTION OF A HIGH RESERVOIR ABOVE ASWAN.

The new 100-meter-high dam would be able to store 160 billion m³ of water and would cost 70 million pounds.

We announced yesterday that Mr. Mahmoud Fawzi, Minister of Foreign Affairs had received Mr. Eugene Black, President of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Bank officials who accompanied him. On leaving the Minister, Mr. Black distributed a statement to the press giving the reason for his visit. Here is the text of this statement:

/ Prepared Statement. GA/

During his conversation with the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the President of the I.B.R.D. obtained an over-all picture of the economic and financial situation of Egypt. He informed Dr. Fawzi of the assistance that the Bank could grant to Egypt and what the Bank expected from Egypt.

The technicians who accompanied Mr. Black implied that the I.B.R.D. was well disposed toward Egypt and would assist it to carry out its reform projects now that the new government has clearly defined them. Before they leave ~~xxxx~~ Tuesday morning, the members of the mission will receive a report on the subject of these projects so that they may study them in Washington with the Bank experts. These reports will serve as a basis for the negotiations that will take place between the Egyptian Government and the I.B.R.D. with a view to obtaining a loan to finance these projects.

The big projects--It is known that one of the aspects of the I.B.R.D. policy is to finance productive projects. Among the first projects submitted to it by Egypt are the construction of the high reservoir above the Aswan dams, the fertilizer plant, the Aswan iron and steel project and the railroad works.

Dinner at the Mohamed Aly Club--In the evening, the Minister of Foreign Affairs gave a dinner at the Mohammed Aly Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Black and the members of the mission. Mr. Jefferson Caffery, U.S. Ambassador, Mr. Abdel Guélil El Emari, Minister of Finance, Mr. Chief Hassan Ibrahim and several prominent business people were also guests.

Visit to Aswan-- Mr. Hassan Zaki, undersecretary of State attached to Public Works will leave this evening for Aswan where he will be joined by Mr. Black to choose the site where the high reservoir which will surmount the Aswan barrage will be built.

The geological mission which was to study the terrain presented a favorable report. The reservoir will be built in the form of an immovable wall five meters thick. On each side there will be granite blocks to reduce the impact of the water. The water will pass through two tunnels on the east and two more on the west.

An immense reservoir--The reservoir thus constituted will have an immense capacity, it will be able to hold 160 billion cubic meters of water, or thirty-two times as much as the Aswan reservoir contains. Thanks to these waters two million feddans more will be irrigated. The works will cost 70 million pounds.

The fertilizer plant--It has been estimated that 40 million pounds will be necessary to construct the fertilizer plant that will utilize a part of the hydroelectric power produced by the high reservoir. It has in fact been decided to abandon the use of the Aswan hydroelectric center for the fertilizer and steel plants and use it only to activate the lighting, irrigation and drainage stations in all the big provinces of Upper Egypt. This power will not be available until 1956 after the installation of the turbines.

The fertilizer plant will supply 500,000 tons a year, or three times as much as the same plant was to produce if it had to use the power from the Aswan center.
