Trust Fund Reform Update

Trust Funds continue to serve as an important source of financing that complements core funding from IBRD and IDA, helping the World Bank Group tackle the increasingly complex global development challenges — such as climate change, pandemics, fragility, conflict and violence, and forced displacement— have been recognized in the discussions on the Bank Group’s Evolution Process. The ambitious Trust Fund reform process continues to build momentum, facilitating better strategic alignment of trust fund activities with corporate and country priorities, improving efficiency and supporting partnerships.
