

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the International Development Association (collectively, "World Bank") and the United Nations Development Programme, a subsidiary organ of the United Nations ("UNDP"), (collectively, the "Parties"), recognize the critical importance of partnerships for meeting the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

The Parties share a long history of successful collaboration and have the common intention to further strengthen their cooperation to help partner Governments achieve the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), all of which are linked to the eradication of poverty, and the reduction of inequalities and exclusion, especially in fragile, conflict-ridden and violent environments. To pursue this objective, the Parties are committed to increase collaboration through establishing mechanisms that enable more efficient operational engagements at country levels.

The Parties agree as follows:

Whenever a Government engages UNDP in provision of technical assistance within the context of a World Bank-financed operation, the annexed Standard Form of Agreement for the Provision of Technical Assistance shall be used and shall not be amended by the Government or UNDP except by agreement in writing of the World Bank.

Whenever a Government engages UNDP in delivery of specific outputs within the context of a World Bank-financed operation, the annexed Standard Form of Agreement for the Delivery of Outputs shall be used and shall not be amended by the Government or UNDP except by agreement in writing of the World Bank.

This agreement is valid for an indefinite period and may be terminated by either Party upon six (6) months' written notice to the other Party.
