CATALYZING INVESTMENTS FOR THE BENEFITS OF REFUGEES AND HOST COMMUNITIES: DESIGNING THE JORDAN INVESTMENT CATALYST

AUTHOR: Pierrick Judeaux, Associate Director of Policy, Open Society Foundation

In spite of numerous efforts and increased interest, private sector investment in businesses and projects that benefit refugees and vulnerable host communities has remained more limited than many had hoped. This is driven, in part, by a limited pipeline of investable opportunities. In Jordan, a country hosting one of the largest refugee populations globally, the Open Society Foundations have been working along the World Bank Group and other partners to create a new initiative to address this challenge. The Jordan Investment Catalyst will stimulate the expansion of investable opportunities by offering the combination of three services: the provision of capital, deal structuring and execution services, and firm-level technical assistance and capacity building.
