Dear Law, Justice and Development Week 2023 Participants,

The World Bank Legal Vice Presidency is delighted to welcome you to Law, Justice and Development Week 2023. Each year, LJD Week gathers eminent voices and practitioners in law and development to share ideas, knowledge, and experience on the most pressing issues that challenge the global development agenda.

This annual gathering, made possible through the collaboration of partners within and outside the World Bank Group, serves as a unique platform for participants to discuss and collaborate to achieve measurable outcomes and results on-the-ground.

The renewed mission of the World Bank is to end extreme poverty and boost shared prosperity on a livable planet. To eradicate extreme poverty, we have to think more broadly and consider the strengthening of systems and capacity that better meet the Sustainable Development Goals, address the obstacles of conflict, violence and fragility, food and climate crises, supply chain disruptions, high public debt and inadequate policies and capacity. We need to redouble our collaborative efforts and combine our resources and energies to deliver solutions that are more sustainable and more resilient to shocks from economic upheaval, civil unrest and violence, pandemics and natural disasters.

The effort will require trillions of dollars of investment—well beyond even the enhanced financial capacity of the Multilateral Development Banks and generous Official Development Assistance of our members. It will require a substantially scaled-up private sector engagement and financial support.

For that reason, we have dedicated the theme of this year's conference to be "Partnering for Impact: Enabling and Mobilizing the Private Sector for Sustainable Development" in order to focus on the indispensable role of the private sector in addressing global development challenges. We will consider how laws and regulatory frameworks can support the policy dialogue to create a more favorable enabling environment for private capital mobilization and investment. How can better functioning judiciaries and regulatory agencies instill investor confidence, reduce risk and facilitate investment. And what is the role of Multilateral Development Banks and their partners in enhancing the Rule of Law in the global development agenda?

Thank you for joining us. We look forward to a productive exchange of ideas that can be turned into actions and lead to progress and results in our vital and urgent mission to eradicate poverty on a livable planet.

Warm regards,

Christopher Stephens
Senior Vice President and World Bank Group General Counsel

| 1:00 PM2:30 PM   | Preston Auditorium 07    Leveraging Finance for Climate Change This session will explore the critical path ahead for climate finance. Addressing the impact of climate change requires significant financial investment. It is anticipated that $1.8 trillion a year is needed by 2030 for additional investments in climate action. This is a four-fold increase in adaptation, resilience and mitigation compared to 2019. The World Bank delivered a record $31.7 billion in fiscal year 2022 to help countries address climate change, but the scale of financing required cannot be met by solely the international development finance system. Panelists will explore the role of official and private sector financing for climate change, including how to ensure $260 billion of additional annual official sector financing while also mobilizing and catalyzing private capital. Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Andrew Steer, President and CEO, Bezos Earth Fund</li> <li>• John Morton, Managing Director and Global Head of Advisory, Pollination</li> <li>• Rachel Kyte, Dean Emerita, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University</li> </ul> Moderator: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Shirmila Ramasamy, Senior Counsel, World Bank</li> </ul> Coordinator: Shirmila Ramasamy and Markus Pohlmann, World Bank     |

| 9:00 AM11:00 AM | Preston Auditorium 09    Law, Justice, and Development: Judges’ Perspectives This session is a panel with prominent judges from diverse jurisdictions. Panelists will explore the linkages between the rule-of-law and development. This topic is timely and relevant given the significant decline in rule-of-law indicators in recent years, according to various sources. There are many reasons for this decline — rising levels of corruption, fewer constraints on executive powers, and lack of transparency. This panel will explore why the rule of law, particularly judicial independence, is vital to securing sustainable development on a livable planet. Judges will also explore how development considerations are reflected or impact adjudication processes. Drawing on their rich and varied experience, panelists will offer practical recommendations for policy makers to strengthen formal and informal dispute-resolution processes and contribute towards better and sustainable development outcomes. Speakers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Hon.
