Date Rec'd June 28, 1983

Subject: PDFCI + Quarterly

Date Action Taken: _____
Date Sent to Center: _____

Dear Mr. Gould,

During the visit of your Mr. Khalid Siraj to our office last year, we exchanged views at length on PDFCI's situation in general. We discussed among others the funding problem being faced by PDFCI and the need to strengthen PDFCI capital base for its future operations. It seems to me inopportune to convene an extraordinary meeting of Shareholders to request for a resolution to call in the outstanding callable capital of Rp 3.2 billion. The reasons are obvious. First of all the very low profitability so far and furthermore the unsatisfactory condition of the company.

On the other hand the company needs a bigger volume of business to enable writeoffs without impairing network which, given a fixed gearing, necessitates an increase in equity.

To surmount the pressing situation I mentioned some ideas among others :

1. Request Bank Indonesia to pay in their portion in the Callable Capital prior to being called in as a gesture of their longterm commitment to PDFCI.
2. Seek approval of the Government of Indonesia (c.q. Minister of Finance) to temporary recycle the outstanding balance of IDA Credit 436-IND and IBRD Loan 1363-IND, which in total now amount to Rp 9.6 billion, for several more years and convert its status into a Government subordinated loan, so that the repayment schedule of these loans to the Government of Indonesia would coincide with that of the existing Rp 2,075 million Government of Indonesia Subordinated Loan to PDFCI (agreement dated September 26, 1973).

The objective of this conversion is that PDFCI would get the benefit of the existing World Bank funds for a longer period while at the same time its capital base would be strengthened, as the present gearing ratio is already close to the approved limits.

Mr. Siraj supported those ideas, but he was sceptical whether the Government of Indonesia would accomodate such ideas, considering their present position in facing the negative impact of the world recession on Indonesia's economy.

Fortunately I have pleasure to inform you that Bank Indonesia have agreed to the above request and effected the payment in of Rp 707 million equity capital in May 1983. As to our second idea regarding the Bank loan conversion, the Minister of Finance, in my meeting with his Excellency on June 11, 1983, also deigned to give his approval.

Dear Lina:

Doc # 236,263C

Following up on our telephone conversation today, I have enclosed copies of the description of our SPSS Nutrition Analysis and Evaluation Fellowship agreed upon with the Indonesians and the letter with payment application we recently received from Adinugroho. As we discussed, the budget in this application differs in line items from the budget for the fellowship in the proposal. Also enclosed is a copy of two cables received from Adi. One confirms the budget and bottom line of the entire project (fellowship plus technical assistance); the other confirms the arrival date of the study fellows.

As you know, I fear that a request for a new application might delay the fellowship to a point where we could not carry it out. Already there have been many delays: the fellows were originally to have arrived April 15 and the funds for the entire project were to have been in hand on March 31.

We would like to have your written agreement to use the $21,000 requested in the first application in a manner exactly proportional to the line item amounts in our final budget for the entire project (including both the fellowship and the technical assistance which must proceed simultaneously). The sum in the application is $21,000, 54.8% of the total project budget of $38,319. We wish to commit ourselves initially to the same services to the extent we can carry them out in 54.8% of the original time frame, that is, 42 rather than 77 days. Although Adi has assured me that the rest of the funds are coming in a second application, the fellows could learn useful skills in the shorter time.

It is too late in the day for me to clear this with the University. However, my suggestion to you reflects previous discussions with my Dean, and I do want to mail this to you immediately so you will be familiar with the project description and application. I hope we can then communicate by phone and finalize the paperwork we need before the fellows arrive. We are eager to have them come. Incidentally, the last page attached to the fellowship description is the original budget typed in Indonesia, illustrating that the budget we have been working with all along was basically agreed to with them last February during my visit.

Many thanks for your assistance. I look forward to talking with you next week and making final arrangements.

Sincerely yours,

Marian

Briefing for Mr. Karaosmanoglu's Trip to Indonesia

In response to your memo of May 4, 1983, the latest Form 590s for the four ongoing projects (Population II and III, Health I and Nutrition I) are attached. The following gives updated information on Population II and III and the Nutrition Project and summarizes the status of the proposed Fourth Population Project and health projects.

1. Status of Implementation of the Second Population Project -
Loan 1472-IND

This project was originally scheduled for completion in October 1982 and the loan account should have been closed on April 30, 1983. However, due to delays in the implementation of research and training components, coupled with the reallocation of substantial loan savings (resulting from savings on contingencies and devaluation of the rupiah), the closing date was extended by 12 months to April 30, 1984. Out of the loan amount of $20.7 million, a total of $13.7 million has been disbursed and the rest has already been committed.

Research components were delayed for technical reasons. One of the studies--the oral contraceptive raw materials feasibility study--had to be implemented in three phases, so that the results of each phase could be evaluated before proceeding to the next phase. Not only was it a novel study, but it was technically complex. Neither the Bank nor the Government of Indonesia had previous experience with this type of study and a lot of new ground had to be broken. This process was time consuming. The other research study--the community incentive scheme--became highly controversial within the government and had to be reformulated.

2. Status of Implementation of the Third Population Project -
Loan 1869-IND

The chief problem facing the implementation of this project has been the weakness of project management, particularly the management of the execution of civil works. A start-up delay of about eighteen months was experienced. Progress has picked up recently, and 33 buildings have been completed, 99 are under construction, and tendering is underway for 13. Progress on the nonconstruction components has been satisfactory, and in some cases, especially the training of health personnel, implementation was ahead of the appraisal schedule.

The physical progress made thus far is not fully reflected in the level of disbursement, which is currently $2.5 million compared with the appraisal estimate of $19.5 million. It is expected that this level of disbursement will be reached around the middle of 1984.

May 16, 1983

3. Nutrition Project, LN 1373-IND

Progress accelerated considerably during the final stages of project implementation. The project has now been completed. An evaluation made in 1982 highlighted the lessons learned from implementing the project and these lessons are being incorporated into the national food and nutrition program for REPELITA IV.

4. Proposed Fourth Population Project

The National Family Planning Coordinating Board (NFPCB) has submitted a proposal to the Bank for a fourth population project. In a recent meeting between RSI and the new Minister for Environment and Population, the Minister stressed the importance of expediting project preparation. RSI drew his attention to the need to speed implementation of the Third Population Project. The Minister insists that preparation of the Fourth Project be initiated, while the implementation of the Third Project is being accelerated. The thrust of the proposed Fourth Project is to expand and improve family planning services and to address institutional issues, such as management development and manpower planning and development to reach the targets set out for REPELITA IV. During REPELITA IV the GOI plans to reduce the total fertility rate from the present 4.5 to 3.4 by 1990. This would translate into a fall in the crude birth rate from 34 per 1,000 population to 24.3 per 1,000 population by 1990, corresponding to a decrease in the annual rate of population growth from 2.1% to 1.4%. We believe the project is well-conceived and justified and we strongly support it as management and manpower are extremely important areas that need strengthening. An issue being discussed with the Government in the context of the Fourth Project is coordination of health, family planning and nutrition activities. A mission scheduled from July 14 to 31 to review the ongoing population projects will discuss further with the Government the proposed Fourth Project and the sector issues.

5. Second Health Project

The first health project (Loan 2235-IND) was approved by the Board in February 1983 and satisfactory preparations are underway for its implementation. A mission is scheduled for August/September to initiate discussions related to the second health project.

Dear Dr. Kissa,

Our project on Nutrition Development Project is under completion, particularly the FTDC component. Mr. R.N. Lingaiah is the last of the consultants to arrive at FTDC, Bogor. I am some what worried as to whether his consultancy fee, atleast the portion he has asked for in Bogor will reach him by the end of April 1983 or not, due to unknown factor of delay occuring somewhere between the Chase Manhattan Bank receiving at New York from IBRD and Bank Bumi Daya in Bogor. The delay for one month of the telegraphic transfer is not understood. The hold-up for one month in the case of Mr. R.N. Lingaiah will put him under extreme difficulty as he will be leaving Indonesia for his home country after completion of consultancy assignment in May 1983.

May, I therefore, request you to intimate by cable as soon as the transfer of fund is done by IBRD (vide Bill No. 692 from INDP Secretariat, Jakarta dated 28.3.83) for this request of payment for the Mr. R.N. Lingaiah, Glass Blowing Specialist, for US $ 3,000 to Dr. F.G. Winarno's account with Bank Bumi Daya, Bogor, Indonesia. This will help us to follow-up with the Chase Manhattan Bank immediately.

Thanking you.

Dear Jack,

As you can see from the enclosed letter to Adi and the copy of the finalized proposal, our SPSS data analysis fellowship seems to be proceeding on schedule. As you will note in the description of the fellowship, a three hour per week course on nutrition program evaluation was added in response to T.J. Ho's observations that a greater emphasis on evaluation skills was required.

Thank you for all your help in getting this matter settled. What finally happened was that Adi cabled us a statement concerning the distribution of funds between direct and indirect costs that was acceptable to the University and we cabled back an acceptance plus a brief restatement of minor agreed changes, as detailed in the enclosed fellowship description.

I hope you had a good trip.

Sincerely,

Marian

Thank you for your letter No.167/PPGBD/KU/III/83 of March 4, 1983 informing us of the change of suppliers of scientific books as well as the opening of new letters of credit.

Although the Bank in principle has no objection to these new set of letters of credit, however, since these L/Cs are established in favour of a different supplier, would you please submit fresh withdrawal applications (Proc. VI). Also, as you know, on the new award(s) the Bank's no objection should be obtained.

Please also request the Bank Indonesia to confirm our office (RSI)- Jakarta) of the cancellation of the old L/Cs concerned in order to enable us to inform our Headoffice accordingly and request them to cancel the Qualified Agreements (Nos 48 thru 53).

JAKARTA - PUSAT.

Dear Mrs. Husain,

Thank you for your letter of January 31, 1983.

At this point in time we also share your satisfaction that the Nutrition Development Project has succeeded in implementing most of the major activities set forth. However, as you noted, there are still some aspects that need our attention. I would like to up date you on the status of each of these.

First, the construction of the Assistant Nutritionists Training Center at Pasar Minggu is catching up after the delay incurred because of the shortage of cement in the country. We are very optimistic that the completion of the building and the preparation of documents for disbursement of construction Phase I, II and III will be done on time for the loan closing date.

The procurement of equipment at CRDN, FTDC and Nutrition Academy is in speeding process; we believe that most of these will be disbursed by March. The different Project components are also completing the last batch of fellowship training and consultancy assignments.

Second, as of January 1983, the total amount applied for has reached US$. 10,918,759.56. We are in process of sending reimbursement application for the remaining balance. Most of this amount are already on letters of credit to the Bank awaiting disbursement pending complete operational installment of the equipment. The Project Secretariate is working very hard to get all these application in by March.

Third, the preliminary draft of the Project Completion Report is now being prepared. The Project Secretariat is compiling the data and we are writing portion of the report that will be prepared mainly by us. In addition, we are collecting data regarding the use of consultants from the user's & counterpart's view. This aspect was not covered in the evaluation report. We are confident that draft copies can be sent to your office by May. We have recently concluded two major workshops. The Food and Nutrition Workshop was conducted as scheduled on February 1 - 3 , 1983. We appreciate very much the participation of Dr. Alan Berg from the Bank Office. The outcome of that workshop is now being drafted as resolutions and recommendations for the National Food and Nutrition Program. One of the highlights of the workshop were the guiding speeches by the coordinating ministers of People's Welfare and Economy/Industry.

I have enclosed here for your information the English translation of Minister Widjojo's speech reiterating the commitment of the Government to the Food and Nutrition Program in Indonesia.

The Nutrition Education workshop was also completed successfully.

The Formative evaluation of the Project Nutrition Education component was presented to participants from various ministries and agencies.

The recommendations arrived at in the process of review and discussion will be incorporated in the resolutions regarding Nutrition Education for the National Program.

With all these, I look forward to a successful completion of the Project.

Please accept my warmest regards,

Yours sincerely,

WORKSHOP ON FOOD AND NUTRITION
JAKARTA, 1 - 3 February 1983

ENGLISH TRANSLATION FROM A
TAPED UNSCRIPTED ADDRESS OF
PROF. DR. WIDJOJO

ADDRESS BY H.E. THE CO-ORDINATING
MINISTER FOR ECONOMY, FINANCE AND INDUSTRY OF THE REPUBLIC OF INDONESIA, DELIVERED AT THE WORK-SHOP ON FOOD AND NUTRITION,
FEBRUARY 1st, 1983.

Assalamu'alaikum Warrachmatullahi Wabarakatuh.

Allow me first of all to warmly thank the organisers for the kind invitation they've extended to me to contribute a word or two to this important workshop. Secondly, I find this a most appropriate time for me to heartily congratulate all of you who are today participating in this workshop for your untiring efforts all these years and for your achievements in the field of food and nutrition.

What has so far been achieved in the field of food production and nutrition is but one of the many marginal (?) things that we can all be proud of. Indeed, confronted with a seemingly endless stream of problems day in day out, it is as if we can hardly find the time to stop a while and look back upon what we really did manage to accomplish. We can do that, however, if we care to try and free ourselves for a while from our daily problems and worries, to assess our present situation and project our future.

Compared to conditions a few years back, Indonesia has in the field of food production and supply produced results which unmistakably show the people's earnest intention to attain something really significant for their welfare. I can recall the anxiety we all felt in 1972 when we had to experience a very serious food crisis. In these days of relative abundance, some of you may have forgotten those anxious months when we were confronted with an acute shortage of food.

I can remember how certain regional administrations had to rigidly limit the amount of food supplies leaving their respective regions, thus causing unnecessary hardship to the population in the regions which were short of food.

We desperately tried to overcome the situation by importing rice from other rice producing countries - something which didn't turn out to be too easy to do because of rice scarcity almost anywhere in the world. And if the rice was available, we could not readily pay for it because of inadequate foreign exchange reserves we had at our disposal in those days. If we did manage to get the rice, we still had to solve the complex problem of transportation - of logistics, to get the food distributed to wherever it was most needed in this vast archipelago.

Compared to other, more advanced countries with quite different geographical conditions, we cannot fail to be aware of the immense problems this archipelago republic of ours poses us with.

Take for instance France, one of many advanced industrialised countries. By comparing France's to Indonesia's geographical lay-out, we'll soberly realise that differences in this one aspect alone pose us with specific problems which do not apply to France.

Last year - in 1982 - we experienced a long drought, and even today - which is normally the peak of the rainy season - various regions throughout Indonesia have not seen a break in this long spell of intense drought. However, conditions today are quite different from those 10 years ago when we had to experience a very serious food crisis, simply because we did anticipate the steps to be taken and the kind of things that would have to be done. We knew well in advance which regions would need special attention, and what steps would have to be taken in the case of a drought and the like.

We also knew that we had ample stocks of food supplies, so that we would not be forced again to hurriedly look for additional food supplies abroad.

We should realise, however, that the very much improved conditions today, compared to those in 1972, do not come about by itself; they are the result of continuous and untiring efforts to tackle the vital problems of food and nutrition on the part of all of you who are now participating in this workshop.

In 1980 the world began to feel the pinch of recession - the most severe since the end of World War II, and indeed the worst ever since the depression of 1932. As you may recall, the 30's which began with the depression had to end with the outbreak of World War II. Today we are in the early eighties; and we are experiencing a similar condition which was brought about by an economic slump and recession. We are fortunate that the world-wide economic slump which began in 1980 did not seriously affect Indonesia's economy. One of the reasons definitely lies in Indonesia's record rise in food production output; it was in 1980 that we recorded the remarkable increase of 13.3% in food production - especially rice, compared to the normal average annual increase of only 3 to 3.5%.

This spectacular achievement did not of course come about by itself; it was the resultant of a number of favourable factors. One and certainly the most important factor was the fact that we were in 1980 bestowed with very favourable weather conditions. We should therefore thank God Almighty for this gift, and we should pray that He may bless us with equally good weather conditions this year and the years to come, favourable to agriculture and the production of food.

Another contributing factor was the extent of the irrigation network that had been completed by the time we entered the eighties.

Our efforts to rehabilitate and expand the vast network of irrigation canals in the seventies were accomplished satisfactorily, and were further stepped up in the early eighties by focussing our efforts on the construction of a maze of new primary, secondary and tertiary irrigation canals throughout the country. All this had very great meaning to the increase of food production.

A third factor conducive to our efforts in stepping up food production was the change that took place in the way our farmers lead their lives, in the way they look upon their role as food producers.

Formerly, by the end of the sixties and the early seventies, painstakingly and patiently farmers had to be made aware and convinced of the profitable use of such strange things like superior seeds, insecticides or fertilisers in agriculture. But when we entered the eighties, farmers no longer needed to be persuaded to try and make use of fertilisers. Today they even take it for granted that this commodity, like any other raw material needed in production, should at any time be available in abundance. Subsequently they no longer needed to be told and convinced as to the importance of sending their children to school.

We saw the same thing happening with regard to our family planning programme. When the idea was first introduced, cautiously people had to be made aware and convinced of the vital need for all of us to adopt the programme. But today, mothers would strongly launch their protests if family planning clinics fail to provide them with the kind of service they expect.

Thus our farmers have since adopted a new outlook with regard to the use of pesticides ^{and} the cultivation of superior seeds of new rice varieties. One of the challenges in food production springs from the fact that our farmers have readily taken the risk to plant new and better varieties of rice capable to withstand pests and plant diseases.

This change in attitude among our people who live in the rural areas constitutes a most valuable asset in our efforts to improve their standard of living.

Further more we can see how enthusiastically our agricultural intensification programme have been adopted by our farmers all over the country. Started as what has popularly been called BIMAS - the mass guidance programme, it further developed into what is today known as INSUS - the special intensification programme, for which farmers organize themselves in groups in order to carry out the programmes effectively. And the nation-wide ad^cption of these programmes have indeed met with extraordinary good results.

So as you can see, the 1980 record food production output was the result not only of much improved irrigation, superior seeds, the extensive use of fertilisers and insecticides, but most important also of the effectiveness of our approach in tackling the core of the problem, and that is by introducing the Bimas and Inmas programmes for adoption by our farmers, and for them to organise themselves into small, effective and productive groups.

The setting up of co-operatives, especially in regions chronically suffering from food scarcity, to provide the local population with their basic needs - such as food, has proved to be of great benefit, as shown by the much improved conditions in regions like South Lombok, the eastern half of South Sulawesi, West and East Nusatenggara and a few others. All these give us clear proof that any problem - however difficult it may seem, can be solved satisfactorily, if only we tackle it collectively in a well planned and integrated fashion.

Indonesia's abundant food production in the last few years has been of great significance to our capability to withstand to some extent the effects of recession which caused a slump in economic activity, thus resulting in a sharp decline in the world-wide demand for raw material.

This of course is inevitably being felt by Indonesia's economy in these early eighties. However, the substantial increase in food production also means an increase in our farmers' earnings - who make up the majority of Indonesia's population, thereby substantially increasing their purchasing power.

An increase in demand stimulated in turn the manufacturing industry to step^{up} the production of the types of goods most wanted by the farmers to meet their needs.

So we see that the standard of living of the farmer - as the result of increased food production, has prevented the occurrence of a disastrous economic slump.

That was a very important achievement recorded in 1980. Fortunately the year after another spell of favourable weather conditions prevailed, which caused a further substantial increase of around 10% in Indonesia's food production output. However this was followed last year by ^{only} a slight rise. The reason lies in the less favourable weather conditions throughout the year. Unlike the previous 2 consecutive years, . 1982 - as I mentioned earlier - turned out to be a particularly dry year with a prolonged spell of drought, causing a sharp decrease in the acreage of agricultural areas in many regions. Despite the decrease of arable productive land - compared to the previous year, we surprisingly managed to produce approximately 6.3% more food than the year before. This phenomenon clearly proves an increase in productivity, and this can be taken as a strong indication of the success of our development efforts.

Anyone can at any time lapse into optimism or pessimism. In a mood of pessimism looking at the huge number of people living on the island of Java, one can easily become despondent or even desperate. With a population of around 70 (?) million people in the early seventies - when we first embarked upon our first 5 year development plan, Java has at present around 90 million inhabitants. But food production has at the same time been increasing.

In other words, the increase in population has successfully been coped with by a proportional increase in food production through intensification in agriculture. This clearly shows that steps that may be taken to further improve productivity in the future can be expected to meet with success.

I am therefore convinced that in terms of both quantity and quality, Indonesia's food problems can in the future be tackled even more satisfactorily. We realise, however, that a developing country like ours cannot afford to be self complacent, that we should always continue to do our utmost in overcoming other and possibly bigger challenges we may all have to face in times to come. One should not forget that certain areas in the country are still known to be lagging behind in their food production output. It is true that agriculture - food production in particular, partly depends on the whims of the weather. We cannot, however, resign ourselves to the freaks of nature, and idly watch things go by as they happen. The mere existence of inequities in the midst of our society, the uneven availability of the people's basic needs - such as food, should serve as a challenge to help us look for means in rectifying the wrong.

It is in this context that I should like to express my sincere appreciation for what all of you have accomplished in the field of improving the people's nutrition. H.E. the Co-ordinating Minister for the People's Welfare ^{about} earlier elaborated the tremendous results we have gained in our earnest efforts during the past two 5 Year Development Plans, to improve the people's nutrition. The fact that we have directly been dealing with this most important problem - since it represents one aspect of the people's welfare, clearly proves our determination not only to identify but also to tackle the entire problem completely.

Some people think that certain problems - such as poverty and hunger, will eventually be solved by itself.

They argue that an improvement in the world's economy one of these days will subsequently solve other problems, so that there is no need for anyone to fuss about it, nor to hold a workshop and look into the matter seriously. But we all know that such an assumption is far from the truth; certain problems cannot simply be assumed to solve by itself - as a natural consequence of an improvement in the world's economy. We must and can solve non-economic problems without having to wait for an improvement in our economy. That is why efforts to improve the people's nutrition - which is part of our efforts to fight poverty - have always been given top priority. And that's but one of many and sometimes very complex problems we have to deal with. I know that many of you - who have directly been engaged in efforts to improve the people's nutrition - aren't too happy about the way things have so far been handled. This vital problem of improving the nutritive value in the people's diet cannot be carried out effectively without involving various departments and agencies; or to use the term we all like so much - it is a "cross-sectoral" undertaking. One may have the feeling that problems in life are divided into sectors, and that many aspects of our national life have to cross a number of different sectors, involving many departments each with their specific, clearly outlined functional responsibilities. It is understandable, therefore, that such cross-sectoral problems are not too easy to handle; to deal with such problems effectively the administration is made up of various departments - each in charge to deal with problems which functionally come under their respective responsibility. One may easily get the impression that the involvement of various departments in dealing with a certain problem is the result of overlapping functions; or it may look as if no particular department seems to be solely responsible for the proper handling of it. And that is exactly what has been happening with your joint efforts to improve the people's nutrition.

The involvement of several departments in dealing with one particular problem is however not confined to nutrition; it applies equally to other fields such as food production. The central figure in food production is of course the farmer, who in the first place needs guidance and instruction on the use of superior seeds, fertilisers and insecticides. These have to be provided by the extension officers of the Department of Agriculture. Items like fertilisers have then to be produced and provided^{for} by the Pusri or Kujang fertiliser plants, which fall under the responsibility of the Department of Industry. The finished products have then to be distributed and sold to the farmers, for which the Department of Trade and Co-operatives is responsible. In order to get the fertiliser he needs, the farmer has to see the local branch manager of the B.R.I. - the Bank Rakyat Indonesia - for a loan at very easy terms. Months later, after the harvest, the farmer has to market his crops, for which a floor price has to be set to assure him of a reasonable profit. It is the village co-operative, K.U.D. - the Koperasi Unit Desa - who buys all his crops at the floor price, who in turn sells them in bulk to the local logistics depot, DOLOG - the Depo Logistik, which is a subsidiary of yet another government agency, BULOG - the Badan Urusan Logistik.

But long before he can harvest his crops, the farmer needs water to irrigate his land. This has to be provided for by the Directorate General of Water Works and Irrigation of the Department of Public Works. For the distribution of his crops throughout the country, a vast network of roads has to be built and maintained. And this is the responsibility of yet another Directorate General of the Department of Public Works, i.e. the Bina Marga.

As you see, a number of Departments and agencies are directly involved in the various stages of food production.

Even through the Bimas Co-ordinating Body, activities involving the fullest participation of so many Departments are not easy to organise and to control. It is only through mutual understanding and a commonly shared sense of purpose, strengthened by regular meetings and also workshops like the one you are holding today, that we managed to attain what has so far been achieved in this field. And that is only one example of coordinated action involving various sectors that needed years to be developed into a workable and smooth-running mechanism.

Another example can be found in the field of transmigration. The gigantic task of moving whole families, even whole villages from one area to other, scarcely populated areas, requires in the first place the availability of newly opened vast stretches of arable land, which have to be made ready by the Department of Public Works. Information and instruction to prospective transmigrants have to be provided for by the Department of Manpower and Transmigration. The next step involves the Department of Communication, which is responsible to provide the transmigrants with transportation to reach their new homes. On arrival at their new destination, the transmigrants start to cultivate their plots of land. They'll need seeds, insecticides and fertilisers, which have to be provided for by the Department of Agriculture. For the well-being of the transmigrants, the Department of Health has to provide basic health services at the new resettlement sites. Since it concerns the well-being of whole families, transmigration requires coordination to an even greater extent.

This equally applies to the Family Planning Programme, for which the government set up the B.K.K.B.N. - the National Co-ordinating Body on Family Planning. It is a government agency which has no routine budget. For its operations an allotment is annually taken from the national development budget. It is not surprising, therefore, that B.K.K.B.N. has been able to run smoothly.

Another form of co-ordinating body is the "Authority", such as the Djatiluhur Authority and many others.

For the past few weeks we have been hearing and reading about the government's intention to develop the tourist industry. This is another cross-sectoral undertaking, involving various departments and agencies, the government and the private sector, such as the Department for Foreign Affairs and its representative offices abroad, the Directorate General of Immigration of the Department of Justice, the Department of Communication, the Department of Industry, the Department of Defence and Security, the Directorate General of Customs of the Department of Finance and a few others on the government side, while the private sectors - especially those operating in the field of tours and travel, restaurant and hotel business and many other services - are the ones directly interested in the undertaking.

Cross sectoral activities, involving many sectors which are the responsibilities of various departments, pose us with a real problem. In your efforts to improve the people's nutrition, for which a number of Departments are jointly responsible, the most suitable mechanism has yet to be found, in order that each component knows what it is expected to contribute to the successful implementation of the programme. We should never be disheartened by any difficulties and obstacles that may hamper our efforts. We do realise that this very workshop is being held despite the fact that funds that may have to be made are limited. I should, however, like to stress that there isn't the slightest reason for all of us to be discouraged and to feel anxious that financial constraints may prevent the problem of food and nutrition from getting the government's fullest attention.

I can assure you that food and nutrition are two of the few national programmes which have always been given the highest priority.

We should therefore continue to do everything possible for the effective functioning of the programme . Despite the limited budget that can possibly be made available, we should not spare any efforts to see to it that this vital programme of food and nutrition which is getting the highest priority can be carried out successfully, by utilising the limited budget efficiently.

I need not elaborate in detail about food and nutrition, simply because this is your specialised field. I only hope to be informed of the results of your deliberations in this workshop. I also hope that the outcome of this workshop will be a significant contribution to our preparations in drafting the fourth 5 Year Development Plan, which is to commence in a year's time.

Lastly I wish you all a successful workshop and thank you.

Assalamu'alaikum Warrachmatullahi Wabarakatuh.

Disbursements

We have received your withdrawal applications No. 658 dated February 9, 1983 in amount of US$ 7,500.00 as well as applications No. 665; 666; 660; 661 dated February 12, 1983 in amounts of US$ 20,480; US$ 7,500.00; Pesos 65.144 and US$ 2,760 respectively. These applications were requested to be paid by check to the respective beneficiaries.

Generally, the Bank can pay any currency in any country; however, the channels of transfer should preferably start in the country of the currency to be paid (example: we can pay US dollars in England but the payee has to have an account, or his bank has to have a correspondent bank in the United States). Only if these conditions are not present, we have to effect such payment by check.

The best alternative way to effect some payments of this kind would be to arrange payments equivalent to the (foreign) currency; for example, to pay sterling equivalent of US dollars to the bank account in England of a British supplier/contractor/consultant. Experience in recent years has proven that all other ways of payment which are less direct take more time to be effected, checks may get lost and require a great deal of follow-up from our Disbursements and Cashier's staff.

These matters have been mentioned and clarified several times in the past with your financial staff. However, we have passed on these applications to our Washington office. Our views stated above are thus for your future guidance.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Dear T.J. and Jack:

Enclosed are two copies of the proposal that T.J. and I have already discussed by phone. It proposes an internship or fellowship that would simultaneously provide a one-on-one tutorial in SPSS analysis of nutritional data and also complete the analysis of as much outstanding NIPP evaluation data as could be covered during the internship period, lasting for 3.5 months. The data analyses and draft reports would be taken back to Indonesia for review and final report writing. The internship would have the additional goal of training individuals who could potentially serve as trainers back in Indonesia. Adi, Sonya, Darwin Karyadi and others are eager to see it go through and contributed to the details of the final version of the proposal. According to Adi, BAPPANAS already has given informal verbal approval. The funds would be transferred into a Tufts University bank account, in the manner in which fellowships normally are processed, before March 31. The intern(s) would come with the data as soon as Satoto's data had been put onto tape or disc at CRDN, where arrangements already have been made for interactive data entry. Adi asked me to send the proposal to Jack as quickly as possible so that the cable he sends requesting approval can be acted upon promptly.

As T.J. and I have discussed, I would hope that she could come up to Boston at the beginning of the internship to participate in the process of defining goals and procedures that would best serve our Indonesian colleagues and the needs of the Bank for evaluation data. I have also spoken informally with my friend, David Sahn, who will be working with the Direktorat Gizi and BAPPANAS. If he is in town during the internship period he would enjoy thinking with us about the analyses and about the fellowship. As the analyses progressed, I would hope T.J. would continue to play as active a role as she could in the work of the interns. The two persons who have been proposed to attend are Miss Umbianti Zulaicha, of CRDN, and Dr. Satoto. Miss Zulaicha has a B.S. degree, a mathematics background, and already knows how to program on the CRDN WANG computer. Dr. Satoto is experienced in survey research but wishes to learn computerized methods, with a goal of conducting training back at Diponegoro University.

If you have any questions about the proposal, please don't hesitate to call me here at the School of Nutrition: (617) 381-3223.

Dear Mr. Kisa,

Re : Program proposal for world recognition of the INDP. IBRD Loan 1373-IND.

Following Alan Berg's Suggestion for a communication strategy to disseminate the INDP experience, we are submitting a proposal prepared by IEDI, Manoff International. The INDP officials are very enthusiastic to follow-up this program and share the Project experience both for local as well as international groups.

Doc# 236,145A

We have reviewed the proposal enclosed and it covers the target audiences, activities and materials development needs for the dissemination of such a program. The budget proposed constitutes approximately 0,2 % of the $ 13 M Project which we feel is fairly reasonable considering the expertise that will be availed of and the program coverage envisioned.

We would appreciate very much an early decision on this request. Warm regards.

SECTION 6: SUMMARY OF PROJECT STATUS, TREND AND MAJOR PROBLEMS

Food and Nutrition Program: The evaluation of the impact of the Bank-assisted project on the national program was conducted by an independent team of consultants in August 1982. Details of the evaluation were included in the back-to-office report dated October 8, 1982 and the aide memoiré attached to it. The team's report was used as a background paper for the workshop preparing the national food and nutrition program just concluded.

Project Status: All civil works at the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition (CRDN), the Food Technology Development Center (FTDC), and the Nutrition Academy (NA) have been completed and the facilities are operational. The only civil work still in progress is the construction of the Nutrition Assistants Training Center at Pasar Minggu in Jakarta, 60% of which has been completed. This work should have been completed in December 1982, but was delayed because of shortage of cement. The remaining 40% of the work is scheduled for completion by the end of February 1983. Most of the equipment has been procured, except some audio-visual and special equipment for the CRDN, FTDC, NA and anemia control program. Only 25% of this equipment remains to be delivered. A few consultants have yet to complete their assignments with the CRDN, FTDC and anemia control. An evaluation of the impact of anemia control on estate worker's health and productivity is currently being conducted, the results of which are expected to be available at the end of February 1983. With regard to fellowships, it seems unlikely that all of those provided under the project will be fully utilized. The main problem is the difficulty of securing accreditation by foreign institutions for degrees obtained in Indonesia and the shortage of candidates with proficiency in foreign languages. The Ministry of Health has started preparing the project completion report. A detailed status report is in Annex 5.

Trend: Project implementation accelerated further during the second half of 1982 and this trend is expected to continue until loan closing on March 31, 1983. Disbursement rose sharply from $6.6 million at the end of June to $9.5 million by December 31, 1982. This trend is also expected to continue during the next two months.

Problem: A balance of $3.5 million remains to be disbursed before the loan closing date. This calls for intensified efforts on the part of the Government to expedite the submission of disbursement applications.

Dear Dr. Soebekti:

Re: Nutrition Development Project, Loan 1373-IND

Following up on the recent Bank mission, we would like to express our deep appreciation of the commendable effort made by you and your staff in accelerating further the implementation of the above project during the second half of 1982. There are several issues arising from the mission's review of the project's implementation status to which we wish to invite your attention.

First, in view of the fact that the loan closing date is only two months away, it is important that the implementation of ongoing activities follow closely the schedule discussed with the mission last December. The activities include (a) the construction of the Assistant Nutrition Training Center at Pasar Minggu; (b) the procurement of audio-visual and special equipment for the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition, the Food Technology Development Center, the Nutrition Academy and the anemia control program; and (c) the completion of fellowship training and consultancy assignments. These activities are scheduled for completion before the end of March 1983.

Second, cumulative disbursement currently stands at $9.5 million, leaving a balance of $3.5 million to be disbursed by the loan closing date of March 31, 1983. We would urge that any reimbursement applications that may be available be submitted promptly so that this balance can be disbursed quickly.

Third, the Project Secretariat staff have started assembling data for the preparation of a draft project completion report (PCR). We are scheduling a mission to Indonesia from July 11 through 29 to review the ongoing population projects and would like to spend a few days reviewing with you and the staff concerned the draft PCR. It would be helpful if copies of the draft could be sent to us at the end of May for prior review.

January 31, 1983

Finally, we wish you success in the upcoming workshops on the national food and nutrition program and on nutrition education. We look forward to hearing from you on the outcome of these workshops.

With best wishes for the new year.

Project Execution

National Food and Nutrition Program

The independent team which evaluated the impact of the Bank-assisted project on the national food and nutrition program had very positive impressions about the contribution of the project. Its findings were to serve as inputs into the formulation of the national food and nutrition program. A workshop was scheduled to be held in early February 1983 to review the draft program. The final workshop will be held in July to prepare a chapter for REPELITA IV. One component--home and village gardens--was evaluated separately. The results are discussed in the attachment to this annex.

A. Civil Works

Center for Research and Development in Nutrition (CRDN) and Food Technology: All the remaining additional civil works at the CRDN have been completed as targeted in September 1982. The percentage of the appraisal estimate is now 95%, the remaining 5% represents the provision for supervision and maintenance for three months after completion. Likewise, all additional civil works at the FTDC had been completed, including the rattery and the warehouse. The installation and site infrastructure is now 95% completed, with the remaining 5% covering supervision and maintenance for 3 months.

Nutrition Manpower Planning and Training: At the Nutrition Academy, the construction of the four-story laboratory has been completed. The building was handed over by the contractor in September 1982. What little remains to be done is site infrastructure.

The construction of the Nutrition Training Center in Pasar Minggu started in July 1982. The target date for completion was December 1982. By that date, about 60% of the construction work had been completed. The delay was due to the shortage of cement in Indonesia.

B. Procurement of Equipment

All phase II laboratory equipment for the CRDN has already arrived in Jakarta harbor and is expected to be delivered within 270 days after the opening of a Letter of Credit in August 1982. The procurement of audio-visual equipment for phase II has suffered a setback because the contractor withdrew his bid. Negotiations with the second winner are underway. For phase III (special equipment) a Letter of Credit has been opened and the qualified agreement sent to the Bank.

A few items of equipment under ICB for the FTDC have yet to be procured. However, 95% of the equipment has been delivered. For the special equipment under international shopping phase I, most of the items (80%) have been delivered. As regards phase II, 5 suppliers have opened Letters of Credit and 2 suppliers are in the process of applying for Letters of Credit from Bank Indonesia.

At the Nutrition Academy, phase II of procurement is already 75% completed. Some of the remaining equipment is already in Jakarta harbor and was expected to be delivered in December.

The procurement of special equipment for the Nutrition Education component has been completed. An unused balance of the funds allocated is to be used for the reproduction of action posters developed under the component. Advertising is underway.

The procurement of laboratory equipment for anemia control increased from 10% in May to 80% in December 1982. Letters of Credit have already been opened, the qualified agreement has been sent to the Bank and arrival of the equipment is expected in the next few weeks.

C. Consultancy

The increased utilization of consultants for the different components during the second half of 1982 resulted in the near completion of targets. FTDC, which in the past had difficulties in following the schedule of appointment of consultants increased appointments from 60% of the appraisal estimate in May 1982 to 73% by December. One long-term foreign consultant on planning and technology transfer finished his term in July. Four short-term foreign consultants in different areas, namely, spices and flavors, pilot plants, food chemistry and food analysis, completed their assignments at FTDC between July and October 1982. Eight more foreign consultants have been contracted in the field of instrumentation, glass blowing, grain storage, pest and rodent control, food microbiology and pilot plants. Some of them were still working on their assignment and others were expected to arrive in December.

A long-term local consultant on Nutrition Socio-Economics at the CRDN completed his assignment in October. A report on his consultancy was submitted which included a suggested framework for Socio-Economic type of research and personnel at the CRDN. Three research protocols in this area have also been proposed.

In the Communications Division of the CRDN, a short-term foreign consultant has completed his assignment and has produced a comprehensive report on a nutrition communication program and research in Indonesia. Of immediate application is the identification of priorities and feasible studies on nutrition communication that can be undertaken by the CRDN or in collaboration with other agencies.

For the period between June-December 1982, the CRDN availed itself of 6 more foreign short-term consultants in the field of nutrition research and planning, nutrition socio-economics, community nutrition and nutritional biochemistry.

Although all and even more of the allocation for consultancy for the Nutrition Manpower Training component had been applied for during the previous periods, some of the consultants just finished their assignments during the second half of 1982. A long-term foreign consultant completed the design, materials development and implementation of training for the middle-level and health center workers project. In addition, the consultant drew up guidelines for the monitoring and evaluation of the Assistant Nutritionist Training Center.

At the Nutrition Academy, a local consultant served on a short-term assignment on education management. His term ended in August 1982. Another short-term consultant from India, a laboratory equipment specialist, is scheduled to assist the Nutrition Academy as soon as laboratory equipment is delivered at the Academy.

A short-term foreign consultant has also completed her assignment on the review and appraisal of the curriculum at the Nutrition Academy. A report was presented on the findings and recommendations concerning the present 3-year program leading to a Bachelor of Science Degree in Nutrition.

The area of monitoring and evaluation of the various components had been highlighted as being weak. In this connection, Yayasan Indonesia Sejahtera was hired to review the issue and their report was completed in September 1982 on the Proposed Monitoring and Evaluation System of Nutrition Manpower Planning and Training. The design of the system and form for monitoring are now available for use by the Nutrition Academy.

The consultancy assignment for the evaluation of the Home and Village Garden component has been completed and the report submitted in July 1982. This report provided data for the evaluation team in August and had proven useful in as much as the team did not have time to gather all data and to observe the activity at the height of its implementation.

The summative evaluation of the effectiveness of the Nutrition Education component was conducted using a survey of 1,000 households with the technical assistance of Manoff International. The preliminary draft of the report was submitted in August 1982 and has been accepted by the Government. The report concluded that the recipients of nutrition education differed positively and significantly from the control group in all the indicators used.

The Food and Nutrition Unit in the Ministry of Agriculture had a special task of preparing a technical paper on Food and Nutrition for use in the deliberations related to PELITA IV. A consultant group was contracted to assist the Unit in gathering data for this paper. A preliminary report was presented to the Indonesia Nutrition Development Project evaluation team in August and the final draft of the paper will be discussed at the Food and Nutrition Workshop in February 1983.

Organization and Management: A long-term local consultant has completed an assignment at the Indonesia Nutrition Development Project secretariat. He served as a procurement consultant and has completed procedures for filing, registration and other arrangements for equipment/vehicles acquired through the Project. In addition, the Secretariat hired a long-term consultant in June to assist the Project Director and the Secretariat in administrative and technical matters.

D. Fellowships/Training

A total of 16 long-term fellowships were initiated for the school year 1981-82, 13 of which are in local universities. Short-term training fellowships completed abroad total 25, and these were conducted in Wageningen, London, U.S.A. and Asia. Eighteen staff members from the different components also completed short-term training locally. The table below shows the distribution of fellowships and training by component.

Fellowship and Training: Indonesia Nutrition Development Project
(June - December 1982)

Component	Long-Term		Short-Term
	Abroad	Local	Abroad	Local
CRDN				4
FTDC	1	4	3
Organization and Management	2	2	11
NIPP		7	5	8
NMPT			2
NE			4	6
Total	3	13	25	18

The utilization of fellowships for NIPP and the Organization/Management components have raised the percentage of achievement to 75 and 80 respectively of the reallocation estimate. This is reflected in the accelerated number of staff trained through these components during this period. All the other components have achieved up to 75% - 100% of the allocation, with the exception of long-term fellowships for FTDC and CRDN. Difficult access to universities offering specialized graduate programs abroad and the scarcity of graduate programs available locally posed a big problem. In addition, students from Indonesia find it difficult to gain admission in foreign universities because of lack of accreditation for degrees earned locally and language proficiency requirements are relatively stringent. For this reason, it may not be feasible to reach the fellowship targets.

E. Home/Village Gardens

A detailed review of this component is attached.

Home and Village Gardens

General

1. The objectives of the Home and village garden (HVG) sub-component, as part of the Nutrition Intervention Pilot Project (NIPP) is designed to increase the production of fruit and vegetables through improvements in home gardens in 18,000 households and establish a village seed garden in every village where the program is in operation. The sub-component is implemented through the Ministry of Agriculture's Directorate-General of Food Corps which provides the necessary technical inputs through the network of extension workers.

2. As part of a general review of the Nutrition Development Project, P.T. Ika Harimurthi, a private consulting firm, was commissioned in early 1982 to evaluate the village garden program. A final report was submitted to the MOH Project Director in July 1982. The general conclusions of the evaluation and findings of the mission are summarized below:

Impact - It is not possible to isolate the impact on nutritional status due to the influence of other NIPP activities. It is also not possible to make an objective judgement regarding yield increases since no baseline survey was conducted before the beginning of the project. Although no data of input use (fertilizer, insecticide, etc.) is available, there is enough subjective evidence to indicate that participants have a more general interest in home gardening, report higher yields, adopt improved cultural methods, and have more area under home garden than do non-participants. However, it is also difficult for many farmers to perceive the advantages of the program since yield increases are small, if any, and land devoted to vegetables is limited.

Therefore, unless an HVG program is accompanied by a nutrition education effort which leads to purposeful intensification of the home garden, impact on nutritional status is likely to remain limited. As part of NIPP, the program is designed to benefit those families which are most vulnerable to malnutrition, these same families are often those who are landless and therefore have no land to devote to gardens. This would imply that the program probably benefits only those who have land to devote to gardens. A HVG program does not appear to be realistic for those in most need of improved nutrition. The program has demonstrated that the intensification of vegetable production in home gardens is possible if land is available, and preliminary data from two home garden impact studies currently commissioned by the Department of Agriculture appears to confirm this conclusion.

Coordination - Coordination between the Ministry of Agriculture (MINAG) and the NIPP has been non-existent since 1980, according to the Food and Nutrition Unit in MINAG. This lack of coordination and communication between participating agencies has led to field problems, such as extension workers starting and supporting HVG activities in villages where the NIPP program does not exist. MINAG also feels that the NIPP HVG program is compromised by the existence of a parallel UNICEF sponsored HVG program under the family nutrition improvement program (UPGK) which is well-coordinated at the national and local levels. It is felt that the NIPP HVG program creates unnecessary duplication. Therefore, under future projects, MINAG believes that program objectives can be better attained with only one HVG program, and that the NIPP HVG activities should be integrated into the UPGK program. This would ensure that the nutritional aspects of HVG are properly addressed.

Village Seed Gardens - This aspect of the sub-component has been only minimally successful. The seed gardens were not established as planned primarily because in most villages there is not enough community land suitable for seed gardens. The project has had great difficulties providing to the farmers enough seed of adequate quality. Even where village seed gardens were created, there is evidence that recurrent costs related to maintenance and supervision are excessive. Under the UNICEF/UPGK program, no special village seed gardens are recommended. Rather, the MINAG contracts with farmers in the village to grow seed which are then purchased by MINAG and distributed to villagers.

Agricultural Extension - There is evidence that the extension workers (PPL) who were to supervise the program were not able to provide the assistance to the participants as foreseen by the project. This was partially due to the high priority placed on the rice intensification program (BIMAS). BIMAS took most of the PPL's time and HVGs were mostly regarded as a peripheral activity. Additionally, the PPLs are only minimally trained in horticulture. Even under the UNICEF/UPGK program, it is estimated that only 30 percent of PPLs have benefited from horticulture training or nutrition education. Although full-time PPLs, trained in horticultural practices, were to be seconded to the NIPP project by MINAG, this does not appear to have been carried out.

Dear Dr. Tilaar:

Re: Mr. Soekirman

This letter is to request financial assistance for Mr. Soekirman to complete his Ph.D. degree in nutrition here. You should know that as a result of my letter to Dr. Soebekti (copy attached) of July 21, 1982, an extension was given until March 30, 1983.

Mr. Soekirman has been working extremely hard, he is making excellent progress, and his faculty committee are pleased with how he is doing. His project is an ambitious one, and he needs until June 30, 1983 to complete the work.

We would be very grateful if you could explore funding sources as soon as possible, if IBRD/INDP funding is not available, to provide the assistance that he needs. This includes his stipend but also $1,000.00 which is essential for the additional computer analyses of his data. Attached to this you will find a statement of the financial needs for extension.

Sometimes Cornell University is able to provide financial help but at this stage all funds are committed, and so it is essential that the Indonesian support that he has received be extended for these 3 additional months.

We are very pleased with Mr. Soekirman's academic performance and feel certain that when he has completed his Ph.D. he will make a good contribution to nutrition work in Indonesia.

With all good wishes.

SECTION 6: SUMMARY OF PROJECT STATUS, TREND AND MAJOR PROBLEMS

Food and Nutrition Program: The evaluation of the impact of the Bank-assisted project on the national program was conducted by an independent team of consultants in August 1982. Details of the evaluation were included in the back-to-office report dated October 8, 1982 and the aide memoiré attached to it. The team's report was used as a background paper for the workshop preparing the national food and nutrition program just concluded.

Project Status: All civil works at the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition (CRDN), the Food Technology Development Center (FTDC), and the Nutrition Academy (NA) have been completed and the facilities are operational. The only civil work still in progress is the construction of the Nutrition Assistants Training Center at Pasar Minggu in Jakarta, 60% of which has been completed. This work should have been completed in December 1982, but was delayed because of shortage of cement. The remaining 40% of the work is scheduled for completion by the end of February 1983. Most of the equipment has been procured, except some audio-visual and special equipment for the CRDN, FTDC, NA and anemia control program. Only 25% of this equipment remains to be delivered. A few consultants have yet to complete their assignments with the CRDN, FTDC and anemia control. An evaluation of the impact of anemia control on estate worker's health and productivity is currently being conducted, the results of which are expected to be available at the end of February 1983. With regard to fellowships, it seems unlikely that all of those provided under the project will be fully utilized. The main problem is the difficulty of securing accreditation by foreign institutions for degrees obtained in Indonesia and the shortage of candidates with proficiency in foreign languages. The Ministry of Health has started preparing the project completion report. A detailed status report is in Annex 5.

Trend: Project implementation accelerated further during the second half of 1982 and this trend is expected to continue until loan closing on March 31, 1983. Disbursement rose sharply from $6.6 million at the end of June to $9.5 million by December 31, 1982. This trend is also expected to continue during the next two months.

Problem: A balance of $3.5 million remains to be disbursed before the loan closing date. This calls for intensified efforts on the part of the Government to expedite the submission of reimbursement applications.

Dear Dr. Soebekti:

Re: Nutrition Development Project, Loan 1373-IND

Following up on the recent Bank mission, we would like to express our deep appreciation of the commendable effort made by you and your staff in accelerating further the implementation of the above project during the second half of 1982. There are several issues arising from the mission's review of the project's implementation status to which we wish to invite your attention.

First, in view of the fact that the loan closing date is only two months away, it is important that the implementation of ongoing activities follow closely the schedule discussed with the mission last December. The activities include (a) the construction of the Assistant Nutrition Training Center at Pasar Minggu; (b) the procurement of audio-visual and special equipment for the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition, the Food Technology Development Center, the Nutrition Academy and the anemia control program; and (c) the completion of fellowship training and consultancy assignments. These activities are scheduled for completion before the end of March 1983.

Second, cumulative disbursement currently stands at $9.5 million, leaving a balance of $3.5 million to be disbursed by the loan closing date of March 31, 1983. We would urge that any reimbursement applications that may be available be submitted promptly so that this balance can be disbursed quickly.

Third, the Project Secretariat staff have started assembling data for the preparation of a draft project completion report (PCR). We are scheduling a mission to Indonesia from July 11 through 29 to review the ongoing population projects and would like to spend a few days reviewing with you and the staff concerned the draft PCR. It would be helpful if copies of the draft could be sent to us at the end of May for prior review.

Finally, we wish you success in the upcoming workshops on the national food and nutrition program and on nutrition education. We look forward to hearing from you on the outcome of these workshops.

With best wishes for the new year.

Project Execution

National Food and Nutrition Program

The independent team which evaluated the impact of the Bank-assisted project on the national food and nutrition program had very positive impressions about the contribution of the project. Its findings were to serve as inputs into the formulation of the national food and nutrition program. A workshop was scheduled to be held in early February 1983 to review the draft program. The final workshop will be held in July to prepare a chapter for REPELITA IV. One component--home and village gardens--was evaluated separately. The results are discussed in the attachment to this annex.

A. Civil Works

Center for Research and Development in Nutrition (CRDN) and Food Technology: All the remaining additional civil works at the CRDN have been completed as targeted in September 1982. The percentage of the appraisal estimate is now 95%, the remaining 5% represents the provision for supervision and maintenance for three months after completion. Likewise, all additional civil works at the FTDC had been completed, including the rattery and the warehouse. The installation and site infrastructure is now 95% completed, with the remaining 5% covering supervision and maintenance for 3 months.

Nutrition Manpower Planning and Training: At the Nutrition Academy, the construction of the four-story laboratory has been completed. The building was handed over by the contractor in September 1982. What little remains to be done is site infrastructure.

The construction of the Nutrition Training Center in Pasar Minggu started in July 1982. The target date for completion was December 1982. By that date, about 60% of the construction work had been completed. The delay was due to the shortage of cement in Indonesia.

B. Procurement of Equipment

All phase II laboratory equipment for the CRDN has already arrived in Jakarta harbor and is expected to be delivered within 270 days after the opening of a Letter of Credit in August 1982. The procurement of audio-visual equipment for phase II has suffered a setback because the contractor withdrew his bid. Negotiations with the second winner are underway. For phase III (special equipment) a Letter of Credit has been opened and the qualified agreement sent to the Bank.

A few items of equipment under ICB for the FTDC have yet to be procured. However, 95% of the equipment has been delivered. For the special equipment under international shopping phase I, most of the items (80%) have been delivered. As regards phase II, 5 suppliers have opened Letters of Credit and 2 suppliers are in the process of applying for Letters of Credit from Bank Indonesia.

At the Nutrition Academy, phase II of procurement is already 75% completed. Some of the remaining equipment is already in Jakarta harbor and was expected to be delivered in December.

The procurement of special equipment for the Nutrition Education component has been completed. An unused balance of the funds allocated is to be used for the reproduction of action posters developed under the component. Advertising is underway.

The procurement of laboratory equipment for anemia control increased from 10% in May to 80% in December 1982. Letters of Credit have already been opened, the qualified agreement has been sent to the Bank and arrival of the equipment is expected in the next few weeks.

C. Consultancy

The increased utilization of consultants for the different components during the second half of 1982 resulted in the near completion of targets. FTDC, which in the past had difficulties in following the schedule of appointment of consultants increased appointments from 60% of the appraisal estimate in May 1982 to 73% by December. One long-term foreign consultant on planning and technology transfer finished his term in July. Four short-term foreign consultants in different areas, namely, spices and flavors, pilot plants, food chemistry and food analysis, completed their assignments at FTDC between July and October 1982. Eight more foreign consultants have been contracted in the field of instrumentation, glass blowing, grain storage, pest and rodent control, food microbiology and pilot plants. Some of them were still working on their assignment and others were expected to arrive in December.

A long-term local consultant on Nutrition Socio-Economics at the CRDN completed his assignment in October. A report on his consultancy was submitted which included a suggested framework for Socio-Economic type of research and personnel at the CRDN. Three research protocols in this area have also been proposed.

In the Communications Division of the CRDN, a short-term foreign consultant has completed his assignment and has produced a comprehensive report on a nutrition communication program and research in Indonesia. Of immediate application is the identification of priorities and feasible studies on nutrition communication that can be undertaken by the CRDN or in collaboration with other agencies.

For the period between June-December 1982, the CRDN availed itself of 6 more foreign short-term consultants in the field of nutrition research and planning, nutrition socio-economics, community nutrition and nutritional biochemistry.

Although all and even more of the allocation for consultancy for the Nutrition Manpower Training component had been applied for during the previous periods, some of the consultants just finished their assignments during the second half of 1982. A long-term foreign consultant completed the design, materials development and implementation of training for the middle-level and health center workers project. In addition, the consultant drew up guidelines for the monitoring and evaluation of the Assistant Nutritionist Training Center.

At the Nutrition Academy, a local consultant served on a short-term assignment on education management. His term ended in August 1982. Another short-term consultant from India, a laboratory equipment specialist, is scheduled to assist the Nutrition Academy as soon as laboratory equipment is delivered at the Academy.

A short-term foreign consultant has also completed her assignment on the review and appraisal of the curriculum at the Nutrition Academy. A report was presented on the findings and recommendations concerning the present 3-year program leading to a Bachelor of Science Degree in Nutrition.

The area of monitoring and evaluation of the various components had been highlighted as being weak. In this connection, Yayasan Indonesia Sejahtera was hired to review the issue and their report was completed in September 1982 on the Proposed Monitoring and Evaluation System of Nutrition Manpower Planning and Training. The design of the system and form for monitoring are now available for use by the Nutrition Academy.

The consultancy assignment for the evaluation of the Home and Village Garden component has been completed and the report submitted in July 1982. This report provided data for the evaluation team in August and had proven useful in as much as the team did not have time to gather all data and to observe the activity at the height of its implementation.

The summative evaluation of the effectiveness of the Nutrition Education component was conducted using a survey of 1,000 households with the technical assistance of Manoff International. The preliminary draft of the report was submitted in August 1982 and has been accepted by the Government. The report concluded that the recipients of nutrition education differed positively and significantly from the control group in all the indicators used.

The Food and Nutrition Unit in the Ministry of Agriculture had a special task of preparing a technical paper on Food and Nutrition for use in the deliberations related to PELITA IV. A consultant group was contracted to assist the Unit in gathering data for this paper. A preliminary report was presented to the Indonesia Nutrition Development Project evaluation team in August and the final draft of the paper will be discussed at the Food and Nutrition Workshop in February 1983.

Organization and Management: A long-term local consultant has completed an assignment at the Indonesia Nutrition Development Project secretariat. He served as a procurement consultant and has completed procedures for filing, registration and other arrangements for equipment/vehicles acquired through the Project. In addition, the Secretariat hired a long-term consultant in June to assist the Project Director and the Secretariat in administrative and technical matters.

D. Fellowships/Training

A total of 16 long-term fellowships were initiated for the school year 1981-82, 13 of which are in local universities. Short-term training fellowships completed abroad total 25, and these were conducted in Wageningen, London, U.S.A. and Asia. Eighteen staff members from the different components also completed short-term training locally. The table below shows the distribution of fellowships and training by component.

Fellowship and Training: Indonesia Nutrition Development Project
(June - December 1982)

Component	Long-Term		Short-Term
	Abroad	Local	Abroad	Local
CRDN				4
FTDC	1	4	3
Organization and Management	2	2	11
NIPP		7	5	8
NMPT			2
NE			4	6
Total	3	13	25	18

The utilization of fellowships for NIPP and the Organization/Management components have raised the percentage of achievement to 75 and 80 respectively of the reallocation estimate. This is reflected in the accelerated number of staff trained through these components during this period. All the other components have achieved up to 75% - 100% of the allocation, with the exception of long-term fellowships for FTDC and CRDN. Difficult access to universities offering specialized graduate programs abroad and the scarcity of graduate programs available locally posed a big problem. In addition, students from Indonesia find it difficult to gain admission in foreign universities because of lack of accreditation for degrees earned locally and language proficiency requirements are relatively stringent. For this reason, it may not be feasible to reach the fellowship targets.

E. Home/Village Gardens

A detailed review of this component is attached.

Home and Village Gardens

General

1. The objectives of the Home and village garden (HVG) sub-component, as part of the Nutrition Intervention Pilot Project (NIPP) is designed to increase the production of fruit and vegetables through improvements in home gardens in 18,000 households and establish a village seed garden in every village where the program is in operation. The sub-component is implemented through the Ministry of Agriculture's Directorate-General of Food Corps which provides the necessary technical inputs through the network of extension workers.
2. As part of a general review of the Nutrition Development Project, P.T. Ika Harimurthi, a private consulting firm, was commissioned in early 1982 to evaluate the village garden program. A final report was submitted to the MOH Project Director in July 1982. The general conclusions of the evaluation and findings of the mission are summarized below:

Impact - It is not possible to isolate the impact on nutritional status due to the influence of other NIPP activities. It is also not possible to make an objective judgement regarding yield increases since no baseline survey was conducted before the beginning of the project. Although no data of input use (fertilizer, insecticide, etc.) is available, there is enough subjective evidence to indicate that participants have a more general interest in home gardening, report higher yields, adopt improved cultural methods, and have more area under home garden than do non-participants. However, it is also difficult for many farmers to perceive the advantages of the program since yield increases are small, if any, and land devoted to vegetables is limited.

Therefore, unless an HVG program is accompanied by a nutrition education effort which leads to purposeful intensification of the home garden, impact on nutritional status is likely to remain limited. As part of NIPP, the program is designed to benefit those families which are most vulnerable to malnutrition, these same families are often those who are landless and therefore have no land to devote to gardens. This would imply that the program probably benefits only those who have land to devote to gardens. A HVG program does not appear to be realistic for those in most need of improved nutrition. The program has demonstrated that the intensification of vegetable production in home gardens is possible if land is available, and preliminary data from two home garden impact studies currently commissioned by the Department of Agriculture appears to confirm this conclusion.

Coordination - Coordination between the Ministry of Agriculture (MINAG) and the NIPP has been non-existent since 1980, according to the Food and Nutrition Unit in MINAG. This lack of coordination and communication between participating agencies has led to field problems, such as extension workers starting and supporting HVG activities in villages where the NIPP program does not exist. MINAG also feels that the NIPP HVG program is compromised by the existence of a parallel UNICEF sponsored HVG program under the family nutrition improvement program (UPGK) which is well-coordinated at the national and local levels. It is felt that the NIPP HVG program creates unnecessary duplication. Therefore, under future projects, MINAG believes that program objectives can be better attained with only one HVG program, and that the NIPP HVG activities should be integrated into the UPGK program. This would ensure that the nutritional aspects of HVG are properly addressed.

Village Seed Gardens - This aspect of the sub-component has been only minimally successful. The seed gardens were not established as planned primarily because in most villages there is not enough community land suitable for seed gardens. The project has had great difficulties providing to the farmers enough seed of adequate quality. Even where village seed gardens were created, there is evidence that recurrent costs related to maintenance and supervision are excessive. Under the UNICEF/UPGK program, no special village seed gardens are recommended. Rather, the MINAG contracts with farmers in the village to grow seed which are then purchased by MINAG and distributed to villagers.

Agricultural Extension - There is evidence that the extension workers (PPL) who were to supervise the program were not able to provide the assistance to the participants as foreseen by the project. This was partially due to the high priority placed on the rice intensification program (BIMAS). BIMAS took most of the PPL's time and HVGs were mostly regarded as a peripheral activity. Additionally, the PPLs are only minimally trained in horticulture. Even under the UNICEF/UPGK program, it is estimated that only 30 percent of PPLs have benefited from horticulture training or nutrition education. Although full-time PPLs, trained in horticultural practices, were to be seconded to the NIPP project by MINAG, this does not appear to have been carried out.

Dear Mr. Kisa,

Our office recently received a request for technical assistance to conduct a food habit survey in some rural communities in Indonesia. A draft proposal prepared by the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition is enclosed. This proposal come about with careful consultation with Dr. Diva Sanjur who spent a month at CRDN as consultant to the Nutritional Sosio-Economic and statistics section of the Center.

If carried out, this study will be one of the first significant researches of CRDN which addresses the contemporary eating patterns in Indonesia with direct implication for the menu diversification policy of the government for rural areas. CRDN intends to carry out this study using the Center's staff and facilities. The personnel, budget and timetable for the study is spelled out in detail in the draft proposal. If the study grant can be fully awarded directly to CRDN, I believe we will be able to finish the paperwork required by the Project within the extension period up to June 1983 for loan closure.

With best wishes.

Re: Nutrition Development Project, Loan 1373-IND

Following up on the recent Bank mission, we would like to express our deep appreciation of the commendable effort made by you and your staff in accelerating further the implementation of the above project during the second half of 1982. There are several issues arising from the mission's review of the project's implementation status to which we wish to invite your attention.

First, in view of the fact that the loan closing date is only two months away, it is important that the implementation of ongoing activities follow closely the schedule discussed with the mission last December. The activities include (a) the construction of the Assistant Nutrition Training Center at Pasar Minggu; (b) the procurement of audio-visual and special equipment for the Center for Research and Development in Nutrition, the Food Technology Development Center, the Nutrition Academy and the anemia control program; and (c) the completion of fellowship training and consultancy assignments. These activities are scheduled for completion before the end of March 1983.

Second, cumulative disbursement currently stands at $9.5 million, leaving a balance of $3.5 million to be disbursed by the loan closing date of March 31, 1983. We would urge that any reimbursement applications that may be available be submitted promptly so that this balance can be disbursed quickly.

Third, the Project Secretariat staff have started assembling data for the preparation of a draft project completion report (PCR). We are scheduling a mission to Indonesia from July 11 through 29 to review the ongoing population projects and would like to spend a few days reviewing with you and the staff concerned the draft PCR. It would be helpful if copies of the draft could be sent to us at the end of May for prior review.
